Promotion Of Below-Zone Juniors Faces Possible Cut-Back; Menaces Retired Pay

BELOW-the-zone promotions in all of the Armed Forces may be brought to an abrupt halt, or at least slowed down, as the result of new developments on Capitol Hill.

Representative Paul J. Kilday (D-Tex), third-ranking majority member of the House Armed Services Committee, and chairman of the subcommittee which considers most of the Pentagon's top personnel legislation, has raised questions about the system of promoting junior officers over their seniors.

He believes the Congress is "going to have to do something about that; to prevent it in all of the Services."

Congressman Kilday made the declaration during hearings before his subcommittee on new career legislation for nurses and medical specialists. The proposal, in keeping with similar provisions in the Officer Personnel Act of 1947, provides for limited promotion of officers from below the promotion zone.

The Subcommittee Chairman said he can see that the Services do not want to be in the position of discriminating against nurses by withholding such authority for them while providing it for other officers. Therefore, he thinks "we must give consideration to changing the other law and prevent the Services from going below the zone."

In support of his view, Mr. Kilday stated: "We have reached the point where more than 95 percent of our people are being retired at anywhere from 51 to a maximum age of 56, because of 30 years of service and five years in grade."

He said "Our retirement is now costing us about $512 million a year and, in a relatively short time, it is going to cost us a billion dollars a year."

This means, he said, that "every day we are more rapidly approaching the point where people are going to go to

ALMOST two thousand promotions for Army, Navy and Air Force Nurses and Medical Specialists are slated to be made in the next five years.

This action is contingent on passage of legislation now before Congress.

Testimony before the Kilday Armed Services Subcommittee on the Nurse-Medical Specialist Bill, being pushed by the Pentagon, shows the following pro-

Pay Plan Augurs Major Cut In Forces; Savings Potential Exceeds $1 Billion

THE Cordiner pay plan, if adopted by Congress, points the way to a major reduction in the Nation's active military forces. This could take effect beginning in fiscal '59.

Some commanders say that full implementation of the revolutionary pay proposals might mean a 10 per cent manpower cutback.

On the basis of present strengths, that would be about 275,000 officers and men.

More conservative estimates are that the Cordiner Plan paves the way for a personnel reduction of 100,000 to 150,000 in the next two years, with additional reductions possible by 1962.

These forecasts are made by informed Pentagon authorities on the assumption of a relative status quo in the international picture.

Responsible officials of the Department of Defense maintain—and so they will advise the President and Congress—that the Cordiner pay scheme, with its accent on quality career service, will result in savings of $1 billion a year, and more, when it is in operation.

Initially, it is conceded, however, that the first year's cost of the bill probably will mean an increased personnel cost of more than $575 million.

The Cordiner Report was being whipped into final shape at the Pentagon this week for presentation to Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson and President Eisenhower, although basic recommendations of the pay study group have been made public (THE JOURNAL 2 Feb. and 9 Feb.).

Army, Navy, Air Force, and Marine Corps chiefs this week submitted their official comments to the Defense Department on the draft of a proposed bill.

At the same time, the Services were computing detailed data on initial costs and ultimate savings involved in the Cordiner proposals.

Secretary Wilson has ordered the Service Secretaries to spell out this cost and savings information in explicit terms. He asks that strength needs be broken down into operating forces and support forces.

In this connection, it is known that Air Force leaders are prepared to say, as General Curtis E. LeMay, USAF, C-in-C of SAC has stated for his command, that full effects of a pay adjustment boosting retention rates markedly would make possible a 10 per cent cut in manpower.

The other Services are less inclined to

HAMBONE HONORED—Hambone was honored for the last time in a military ceremony recently just before he was turned over to his new owner, the Pike's Peak Rodeo Assn. of Colorado Springs. ## Manpower Cut Linked To Pay Raise stipulate a 10 per cent savings, but they are prepared to join the Air Force in asserting that a significant reduction in over-all turnover and retention of more men, particularly in "hard skill" areas, could be followed by manpower cuts.

From first page—

There is no secret in the fact that the Department of Defense, prior to the outbreak of hostilities last Autumn in the Middle East and Hungary, was aiming for a sizable manpower reduction.

This projected cut, though postponed, has not been abandoned.

Secretary Wilson and his associates now see in the Cordiner Plan an answer to the problem of how simultaneously it is possible to reduce the size of the active forces and improve combat readiness.

A major complicating factor, particularly for the Army, is the NATO obligation. The Army has a firm commitment to provide five tactical divisions and other elements, including the SETAF Atomic Support Command, in Europe. Additional forces must be ready in the Strategic Reserve for instant deployment across the Atlantic.

The NATO requirement is a major factor in computing over-all Army manpower needs, and is a basic reason why the Army is less reluctant than the Air Force to go along with 10 per cent manpower reduction forecasts consequent upon implementation of the Cordiner Plan.

The Navy and Marine Corps are also hesitant to spell out possible reductions in sailor and marine ranks in terms of thousands of men.

It is to be noted that the Air Force, which had been building to 137 wings, has been given a revised target of 123 wings, including some wings not previously counted.

The Army drops from 19 to 17 tactical divisions, but new Atomic Support Commands will be added.

On the other hand, there has been no indication of any reduction in the number of Navy ships in active service, and certainly there is no early likelihood of the loss of any of the Marine Corps' three divisions and three aircraft wings.

Pentagon officials believe that the ultimate success of the Cordiner proposals with their initial costs, will depend in large part on what savings can be promised to Congress.

This belief is made understandable in the light of President Eisenhower's public statements expressing his concern over rising costs of Government and Secretary of the Treasury George M. Humphrey's desire for a cut in Federal spending and the fact that only $136 million is provided for new legislation in the '58 budget.

Against this fiscal situation, Defense spokesmen are prepared to assert that enactment of the Cordiner Plan, with a reduction in manpower, training overhead and reduced hardware requirements, would create an environment in which savings in excess of $1 billion per year could be attained.

The present cost per man in the military forces is considerably in excess of $5000 per year. Some experts say it now runs closer to $10,000 per year.

The feeling among budget people is that a reduction in military strength of 125,000 men, or more, would mean a savings of at least $1 billion. Many think that such a reduction can be promised, subject to (1) approval of the Cordiner Plan, (2) action that strengthens the Reserve Forces and (3) no imposition of additional missions—all of this coupled, of course, with the introduction of increasing numbers of modern weapons and continued streamlining of striking forces, as in the case of the Army's "Pentomic" divisions.

C OF S SALUTES LT.

General Maxwell D. Taylor, USA, Chief of Staff, joined Under Secretary of the Army Charles C. Finucane and Mrs. Robert P. Patterson in praising the record of 2d Lt. Robert G. Matheson at Pentagon ceremonies this week where the young officer was honored as the top 1956 OCS graduate from the Infantry School at Ft. Benning, Ga.

General Taylor spoke of Lieutenant Matheson's outstanding record. Then, after the Lieutenant had responded with brief remarks of thanks, the Chief of Staff stepped forward again and said: "As Chief of Staff, I want to add what a pleasure it is to discover a second lieutenant who knows how to speak."

Army Outlines Six-Months Training Plan; President Favors "Better Trained" Guard

National Guard leaders will appear before the Brooks House Armed Services Subcommittee on 18 February to tell their views on the Army's projected changes in Guard training.

The Subcommittee temporarily suspended hearings this week after taking testimony from top Defense Department officials.

In the midst of the hearings last week, President Eisenhower disclosed that he is not in favor of the Army National Guard proposal to split the planned six month training for future Guardsmen into two summer hitches. He said such a program would not meet what he considers the minimum requirements.

The President told a press conference he has advised National Guard leaders, however, that no matter what type of training program is finally adopted, he will "exert every bit of influence there is in the Presidency to prevent the Guard falling materially below its present strength."

He said he did not know how the training plans will work out, but he favors "far better trained" Guardsmen.

At the Capitol, Assistant Secretary of the Army Hugh M. Milton told the Brooks Subcommittee that Army "participating" reserve forces (made up of both the Army Reserve and the Army National Guard) have experienced a "healthy growth" since 1952. He said they have grown in only four years from 348,000 to 601,000.

In addition, he noted, there is a "vast pool" of Ready Reservists. Last July this pool contained over two million men but the Army is in the process of whittling this down to fighting trim and expects eventually to cut the total to about 1,450,000.

Since passage of the Reserve Forces Act in 1955, Secretary Milton said the Army Reserve has gained 73,000 officers and men, "a substantial portion" of whom are "fully-trained."

Secretary Milton outlined the Army's new training program which is expected to reduce the number of men in the Reserve components who have had no active duty or prior service.

Here are the reserve component enlistment programs which Secretary Milton said the Army plans to put into effect on 1 April:

1—Men in the 17-18½ age group may enlist in the Army National Guard or Army Reserve for three or eight years respectively. They must perform six months' active duty for training, and after satisfactory participation in reserve duty training for 4½ years, may be eligible for transfer to the Standby Reserve to complete a total of eight years' service.

2—Men in the 18½-25 age group may enlist in the Army National Guard or Army Reserve for three or six years respectively. Such enlistees will incur a six-year service obligation which they satisfy by performing six months' active duty for training and by participating in reserve duty training for the remainder of the six-year obligation.

3—Men in the 26-35 age group may enlist in the Army National Guard or Army Reserve for a three-year term. They will perform six months' active duty for training and thereafter participate satisfactorily in reserve duty training for the remainder of their enlistment.

4—The fourth program is for those in the age group 17-25, and involves a six-year enlistment in the Army Reserve. These men go on active duty for two years, serve two years in the Ready Reserve, and then become eligible for transfer to the Standby Reserve for the remainder of their enlistment.

Effective 1 April, Regular Army enlistees and inductees will become eligible for transfer to the Standby Reserve upon completion of a total of four years' active duty and Ready Reserve participation.

Implementation of these plans, Secretary Milton said, "is expected to reduce the present imbalance among prior and non-prior service personnel so that by the end of Fiscal Year 1962 the number of non-prior service personnel will be negligible."

Secretary of the Army Wilber M. Brucker told the Subcommittee earlier that 80 per cent of the men currently serving in the National Guard had no prior active duty training or service before they became Guardsmen.

Secretary Milton warned that the United States will not have 12 months in which to ready its reserve forces for battle in the event of war or national emergency. He said "11 or 12 weeks of training time" may be all that is available.

Brig. Gen. Creighton W. Abrams, Deputy Assistant Chief of Staff of the Army (for Reserve Components), told the Subcommittee, "There just is not room within the limitations of the Army Ready Reserve ceiling for untrained men."

He said the six-months training program will produce for the Reserve or National Guard company commander "all the basic skills required in his company and will eliminate advanced individual training as a job for him to do with the limited resources at his disposal."

General Abrams said this will mean "the company then can devote its efforts to basic unit training."

If the six-months training program is shortened, he told the Brooks group, company commanders will have to train their own men in a variety of separate skills and will "never get around to training as

Ask Pay Boost For Lawyers

Senator Strom Thurmond (D-SC) has introduced legislation in the Senate which would give Armed Forces lawyers the same pay as military physicians and dentists.

His proposal (S-1165) has been referred to the Senate Armed Services Committee for action. The Committee has forwarded a request to the Department of Defense for its recommendations on the bill.

One of the most-decorated law-makers at the Capitol, Senator Thurmond participated in the WW II Normandy invasion with the 82d Airborne Division. He is a Brigadier General in the Army Reserve and former president of the Reserve Officers Association.

B/G Evans PX Deputy; B/G Gallant Will Stay

Brig. Gen. Roy T. Evans, jr., USA, has reported to the New York City headquarters of the Army and Air Force Exchange Service as Deputy Chief of the Army and Air Force Exchange Service.

General Evans, a 1933 graduate of the U. S. Military Academy, succeeds Brig. Gen. Edward B. Gallant, USAF, who will remain in New York as Special Assistant to Maj. Gen. Harlan C. Parks, USAF, Exchange Service Chief.

General Evans joins the Exchange Service following an assignment as Chief of the Storage and Distribution Division, Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Logistics, Washington, D. C., where he was stationed since April 1955.

Army Hails 2d Lt. Matheson; His Career Reveals Problem In Connection With Cordiner Longevity Recommendation

A PROBLEM area in the recommendations of the Cordiner Committee was spotlighted this week as the Army honored 2d Lt. Robert G. Matheson, USA, with the 1956 Robert P. Patterson Memorial Award.

Lieutenant Matheson enlisted in the Army in August 1947, interrupting his high school education after two years. In the Army, he utilized off-duty time to complete his high school credits through the Armed Forces Institute and went on to take a year's college credit.

The 25-year-old lieutenant, now assigned to the 82d Airborne Division, had completed over 9 years service when he was commissioned a second lieutenant.

He had achieved an outstanding record of service in enlisted ranks. Under the present pay law, a second lieutenant with over 9 years service receives $327.60 per month.

As a first lieutenant with over 10 years service, Lieutenant Matheson would be paid $382.20.

THE CORDINER PLAN, which, of course, would protect Lieutenant Matheson's present pay by a "savings clause," would mean a pay of $268 for a second lieutenant with over two years in grade. This is the top second lieutenant's pay.

Lieutenant Matheson's promotion to first lieutenant, under the Cordiner plan, would give him a pay of $335 per month, which is the entry rate for an O-2. This is $7.40 more than he now receives, but it is $47.20 less than he would receive as a first lieutenant with 10 years longevity pay credit.

In the long run, of course, Lieutenant Matheson and officers like him, who have had enlisted service, can expect to do well under the Cordiner proposal, with its accent on increased pay in higher ranks.

But for the short term situation, it would appear that pay problems will occur in many cases where men have reached officer ranks after outstanding enlisted service.

Some Pentagon officers with whom this problem has been discussed suggest the possibility of giving some kind of pay credit for previous service in such cases in junior officer ranks to compensate for the elimination of the longevity factor and its replacement by in-grade pay steps.

Others say that the matter possibly could be solved by extending the period in which the "savings clause" would be effective—possibly over an entire career.

It would seem highly desirable that some action be taken to insure that proper pay recognition is given to such an officer as Lieutenant Matheson, who has had nothing but distinguished service, who has demonstrated outstanding initiative in improving his educational background while in service, who is, in short, the type of officer that the Services want to keep.

For as the Cordiner plan now stands, Lieutenant Matheson can expect to receive a maximum pay of $375 per month as a first lieutenant with over four years in grade.

To achieve this rate of $375, he will have 14½ years service. Under the present scheme, the pay would be $413.40 for a first lieutenant with such service.

a unit and probably never complete individual training."

Soldiers, he said, "must be trained together as a team for it is the team that brings to bear the full combat power of the Army."

Maj. Gen. Edgar C. Erickson, Chief of the National Guard Bureau, cited statistics which show that the National Guard's participation in the six-months training program currently being conducted on a volunteer basis did not quite live up to early expectations.

He said several States which made an all-out effort "have had good results." Many other States made honest efforts to obtain volunteers, he said, "but have not been successful." Other States, he added, "made no real effort and, consequently, have not produced their share of the volunteers."

Since October of last year, however, there has been a marked up-trend which, he said, "indicates that the States are now promoting the program."

Lt. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, Director of Selective Service, told the Subcommittee that if the United States was faced today with the necessity of augmenting its armed forces by no more than two million men it would have only two choices, "both bad." He said, "We would be forced to recall at least one million of generally unorganized, former servicemen, aging Ready Reservists or take one million untrained who have not served but unfortunately have not trained."

The Selective Service Director noted that the Reserve Forces Act has trained some men "but there is need to increase the numbers as well as the amount of training." He said "if we create a powerful Ready Reserve—really organized—really trained—really equipped" we will achieve a position of power which possesses "the best possible chance for peace."

Secretary of the Navy Charles S. Thomas, Admiral Arleigh A. Burke, Chief of Naval Operations, and VADM. James L. Holloway, Jr., Deputy CNO for Personnel and Naval Reserve, told the Subcommittee that the Navy is making "significant progress" in building a well-trained Ready Reserve. The Navy, they pointed out, is using the six-months training program only to obtain a limited number of men with critical skills.

Secretary of the Air Force Donald A. Quarles and General Nathan Twining, Air Force Chief of Staff, also expressed their general satisfaction with the way the reserve program is shaping up in the Air Force.

Secretary Quarles told the Subcommittee that the country "cannot afford to have Reserve components merely for the purpose of holding together loyal, patriotic men and women who are willing and anxious to serve their country in time of need. We must have a trained Reserve Force which can promptly and effectively complement the active force."

General Twining said Air Force reserve forces "have made encouraging progress" and it is estimated "that about 50 per cent of the units of the Air National Guard and Air Force Reserve already have a limited, but immediate, combat capability." He said this status, although "only half way to the goal," is better "than ever before achieved in the Reserves."

The Air Force, General Twining noted, is now accepting six-month trainees and has programmed 2500 for the current fiscal year and 3600 for fiscal '58 to meet "needs for airmen in the lower grades."

3.2 Ban Ordered

The Army has banned the sale of all alcoholic beverages at military reservations to Reservists and National Guardsmen under 18½ years of age who are in a six-month active duty training status. The prohibition applies to 3.2 beer sold in Post Exchanges.

Effective immediately, said the Army, "all persons dispensing beer at installations where the six month trainees are stationed will require all prospective patrons, exclusive of officers and NonCommissioned Officers in uniform, to show identification cards prior to making a sale." The red colored identification card of the six month trainees will be checked to determine the age of the trainee.

This order does not affect Regular Army people, the Pentagon said.

Next Week—

LT. GEN. THOMAS F. HICKEY, USA (left), Third Army Commander, and Maj. Gen. N. A. Costello, USA, commanding general of Ft. Jackson, are shown at a dinner given by the 51st National Guard Division honoring their retiring commander, Maj. Gen. John C. Henagan, and their new commander, Maj. Gen. Ansel B. Godfrey.

THE THIRD ARMY has become a beehive of forward-looking Army activity, highlighted by forthcoming conclusion of Operation Jump Light Tests involving the "Pentomic" 101st Airborne Division, whose progress has been reported in detail in previous issues of THE JOURNAL. A staff representative met late this week with Lt. Gen. Thomas F. Hickey, USA, head of the Third Army Command, to review activities throughout the Command. The report will appear in next week's issue.

ARMY AVIATION, which continues to attract attention throughout all the Services, will be surveyed in a special on-the-scene report from Ft. Rucker, Ala. Coincidentally with THE JOURNAL's visit to Rucker came word that the Commandant of the Army Aviation School, Brig. Gen. Carl I. Hutton, USA, will be reassigned in July to duty in Germany.

THE JET AGE CONFERENCE of the Air Force Association, covered in stories on Page 29 of this issue, again will be featured prominently in next week's issue of THE JOURNAL, with accounts of presentations and background reports on Conference deliberations.

THE MARINES have established a new about training Marines in marksmanship—a proud tradition in the Corps. All Service people will want to know more about the new emphasis on rifleman training and how it will be supervised by Col. Robert D. Moser, USMC. Headquarters Branch to do even more.

THE CORDINER PAY ACTION will, of course, continue to be watched closely and reported in detail throughout the news, comment and editorial pages of THE JOURNAL.

Reserve Gens. Back DoD

The Senior Reserve Commanders Association, which met this week at Continental Army Command Headquarters, Ft. Monroe, Va., has unanimously endorsed the continuous six-month active duty training program required by the Defense Department for all men entering the Armed Forces Reserve.

Fifty general officers of the Reserve attend the Monroe meeting.

Col. Hoehne Will Head Central Traffic Region

Appointment of Col. Ervin D. K. Hoehne, USA, as Regional Director, Central Traffic Region with headquarters in St. Louis, Mo. is announced by Maj. Gen. E. C. R. Lasher, USA, Executive Director of the Military Traffic Management Agency, Washington, D. C.

Colonel Hoehne served as Chief of the Movement Control Division in the Transportation Office of U. S. Army Forces, Far East and Eighth Army (Rear) and also commanded the Army Traffic Management Agency in Japan prior to his transfer to MTMA.

The MTMA was established to bring under a single agency the traffic management responsibility for all stateside commercial freight and passenger transportation used by the Armed Forces.

FLAG RANK FOR NURSES, MSC CHIEFS

Flag and general officer ranks are being proposed for the chief nurses in the Army, Navy and Air Force and for the top officers of the Medical Service Corps in each of the military departments.

During testimony before the Kilday House Armed Services Subcommittee, which is holding hearings on new career legislation for nurses and medical specialists, Miss Agnes Ohlson, President of the 180,000-member American Nurses' Association, said:

"Because of the relative importance of the position of the Chief Nurse, and because of the nature of the responsibilities it carries, the American Nurses' Association believes the rank for the position should be raised to that of Brigadier General in the Army and Air Force and to Lower Rear Admiral in the Navy."

Dr. Joseph M. Babcock, Vice President of the 11,000-member American Optometric Association, suggested similar rank boosts for top Medical Service Corps officers. He proposed that the legislation be amended "to provide that the Chiefs of the Corps in the Army and Air Force be commissioned as major generals and that provisions be made for two Deputy Chiefs of the Corps to be commissioned as brigadier generals with corresponding flag rank for the Chief and Deputies of the Corps in the Navy."

Representative L. Mendel Rivers (D-SC), asked Dr. Babcock if, in view of his recommendations, he did not also feel that the Surgeons General should be given three-star rank. Mr. Rivers has long advocated such legislation. Dr. Babcock agreed that the increased rank would be a good move.

Chairman Paul J. Kilday (D-Tex) told Dr. Babcock and Miss Ohlson that the views of their associations will be carefully considered by the Committee during its deliberations in closed session.

Caisson Correspondence Holds Horses' Fate

Feb. 10, 1957

Dear Representative Vinson:

I am 10 years old. I have always wanted a horse. I read in the newspaper where you might have to get rid of the 17 Army horses. If you have to get rid of them, I would like to have one. I would take good care of it because I love horses.

Paula Swasey
Wayne, Maine.

Feb. 13, 1957

Dear Paula:

Thank you for writing to me with reference to the 17 Army horses. I wish it were within my power to give one of the Army horses to a fine young lady like you, because I know you would give it a good home. But they are not mine to give.

These beautiful horses have been used in connection with military funerals in Arlington National Cemetery where many of our gallant military people are buried. You have read about this decision to use automobiles instead of horses for this purpose, but I am opposed to that decision and have already urged the Army to reconsider this decision.

So while I regret that I cannot send you one of these horses, I am sure that you would be just as happy if you knew that the horses would continue to be used in keeping with one of our great traditions in honor of our deceased military heroes. I shall do everything I can to make that possible.

Sincerely,
CARL VINSON
Chairman

My dear Mr. Secretary:

In these times of supersonic speed, guided missiles and nuclear submarines, I can understand the seeming incongruity of a horse-drawn funeral entourage, but had hoped that the pace of modern living might at least be retarded for our honored military dead.

It seems to me that the announced plan to eliminate the 17 funeral horses will not only remove the last vestige of a great tradition of the United States, but also carries the spirit of economy so far as to endanger other honorable customs of our Armed Services.

We still retain naval salutes by naval vessels for heads of state and individuals of rank; military bands still play Chopin's Funeral March and Taps; we still present an American flag to the widow of a deceased Serviceman; and we still fire a volley over the graves of deceased veterans. In the interest of economy, will these be the next to go?

Can we not still continue to conduct a few of the funerals that take place in Arlington Cemetery with horse-drawn caissons?

Certainly the alleged financial savings that would result from replacing these horses with motorized hearses could not possibly compensate for the inevitable loss of the tremendous feeling of respect, dignity and solemnity that is engendered as a tourist to the city of Washington observes a horse-drawn funeral.

And, in connection with the so-called "savings," how were they computed? Was the cost of a hearse compared with the value of the service performed to this country by the deceased? What price was used as a yardstick in determining the value of "dignity," "tradition," "honor," and "glory" compared to the initial cost of a hearse, its gasoline consumption and its maintenance? Does tradition and honor depreciate more rapidly than hearses?

If we can afford state dinners, and the expenses always associated with the visits of foreign dignitaries, we can afford to retain some small semblance of the respect this Nation still possesses for the few military personnel who are carried to their last resting place on a caisson.

Certainly we must economize, but in a $38 billion budget there must be some better way of saving a few thousand dollars a year than at the incalculable cost of destroying the traditions of the past.

When I reflect upon the great men in our history who have been drawn to their final resting place by magnificent Army horses, I cannot help but wonder how many young men who observed those funerals were inspired to emulate the honor, the accomplishment, the patriotism and the devotion to duty that were reflected in those men's careers.

We can't purchase patriotism and devotion to duty, but certainly we would be wrong in destroying a tiny symbol that gives proper recognition to the great men of the past, the present and the future, who will, one day, rest in final glory in Arlington Cemetery.

Can we not retain the 17 horses now serving at Ft. Myer and let the world observe in our great zest for speed, efficiency, economy, and accomplishment, we can still find the time to pause and give proper tribute to some of our honored dead?

Sincerely yours,
CARL VINSON

U. S. Army

LT. GEN. CHARLES E. HART, USA, (left) CG Second U. S. Army, troops the line with Lt. Gen. Milton G. Baker, USA-Ret.; superintendent, during visit to Valley Forge Military Academy, Wayne, Pa. General Hart has been making inspection tours of ROTC and Army units in the Second Army area.

Admiral's Son Joins 3d Army As C of S

Col. Thomas C. Foote, USA, has been named Deputy Third U. S. Army C of S by Lt. Gen. Thomas F. Hickey, Commander, at Ft. McPherson, Ga. He had commanded I Corps Artillery in Korea.

Colonel Foote, USMA '34, holds a Master's Degree in Modern Languages from Laval University, Quebec, Canada. He is the son of RADM. and Mrs. P. W. Foote, USN-Ret, 523 Clement Ave., Charlotte, N. C. He is married to the former Foss O'Donnell of Junction City, Kansas. He and Mrs. Foote have one daughter, Rosalind, 14, and one son, Frederick, 5. Colonel Foote replaced Col. Herbert H. Andrae, USA, now Deputy G-4 (Supply and Logistics) Chief at Headquarters Continental Army Command, Ft. Monroe, Va.

Col. Penaat In B.G. Post

Col. Edward F. Penaat, USA, former Deputy to the Provost Marshal, Department of the Army, has taken up new duties as USAREUR Provost Marshal at Heidelberg, Germany.

He succeeds Brig. Gen. H. M. Hobson, USA, who recently left USAREUR to take up his new position of Provost Marshal, AFPE/8th Army.

Surveillance Agency Set For D. C. Debut

The Army Combat Surveillance Agency soon will be established in Washington, D. C., to coordinate and expedite the production of a combat surveillance system to be used by troop commanders.

This system will use improved electronic equipment and techniques which will aid commanders in gaining battle-field information about the enemy.

The new agency will concern itself with research, development and test of techniques and equipment, production of equipment and systems, development of doctrine and procedures for its employment, and training of necessary technical personnel.

ACSA, under the jurisdiction of the Army's Chief Signal Officer, will be headed by Brig. Gen. Francis F. Uhrhane, USA, who was formerly Chief of Research and Development for the Army Signal Corps.

Initially the staff of the Army Combat Surveillance Agency will include five officers and seven civilians.

Col. Carey Dist. Chief

BRIG. GEN. THOMAS J. SANDS, III Corps Artillery Commander since Aug., 1955, has been assigned to Headquarters, U. S. Army Forces, Far East/Eighth U. S. Army in Korea. His post at Ft. Hood, Tex., will be taken over by Brig. Gen. John A. Berry.

Huachuca Has New Deputy

New Deputy Post Commander of Ft. Huachuca, Ariz., is Col. Edward C. White, USA.

Col. Edmund T. Bullock, USA, former Deputy Post Commander, has been appointed Chief of Staff, succeeding Col. Merle C. Bowsky, USA, who left for assignment in the Panama Canal Zone.

Colonel White's last overseas assignment was as Signal Officer with the Military Assistance Advisory Group in Viet Nam. He departed Viet Nam in November 1954 and arrived at Ft. Huachuca, in January 1955, for duty as Chief, Logistics (G-4). His next assignment at Ft. Huachuca was as commanding officer of the 505th Signal Group in January 1956.

100,000TH JUMP

The parachute jump which Pvt. James J. Peterson made at Ft. Bragg, N. C., on 4 Feb. was his first but the 100,000th made by a student of the 82d Airborne Division's Basic Airborne Course.

To commemorate the occasion, Brig. Gen. Edwin S. Hartshorn, USA, Division Artillery Command and acting Division Commander, preceded Private Peterson out of the door of the Fairchild C-119 Flying Boxcar.

The 100,000th jump for the school came after three years of activity in which an average of 120 new troopers each week were awarded their silver wings. Accident rate has been kept to .7 of one per cent, or seven injuries out of every 1,000 jumps.

83d Div. Assn. Chief

Col. Robert H. York, USA, has been elected president of the 83d Infantry Division Association.

Since the original membership list has been misplaced, all former members of the Thunderbolt Division, both officers and enlisted men, are urged to contact Colonel York for information concerning the association. His address is Director, Tactical Department, U. S. Army Infantry School, Ft. Benning, Ga.

The association will hold its annual reunion 15-17 Aug. in the Hotel Roosevelt in New York City.

Automatic Weather "Typewriters" for Transatlantic Planes

Soon airline pilots who fly the North Atlantic can have direct and continuous contact with weather stations, keeping posted about weather changes during every moment of flight.

This weather "typewriter" is a specially designed airborne teleprinter that automatically and continuously provides ... in printed page form ... the latest weather information from stations in Canada and Scotland, as part of the new weather reporting system called NARCAST.

Developed by Federal Telecommunication Laboratories, a division of International Telephone and Telegraph Corporation, and Creed and Company, Ltd., an English subsidiary, this radio-teleprinter is the size of an ordinary typewriter. It answers the urgent need of transatlantic planes to receive accurate weather data over long distances—also it releases voice channels for vital traffic information, and permits the pilot to read weather reports at any time.

This is another major advance by IT&T in airline communications, bringing greater efficiency, comfort and economy to air travel.

Bill Boosts Number Of Navy Nurse Corps Officers Authorized In Top Three Ranks

The Navy Nurse Corps, with an active duty strength of 2100, will be permitted to have four captains, 105 commanders and an unlimited number of lieutenant commanders under the terms of the proposed Nurse Corps-Medical Specialist Career Bill.

The proposal also removes the two percent limitation on the number of Navy Medical Service Corps officers who may serve in the grade of captain.

Capt. W. L. Jackson, NC, USN, Director of the Navy Nurse Corps, told the Kilday House Armed Services Subcommittee the proposed legislation will give the Navy Nurse "rank and pay more in keeping with the responsibility in patient care which she carries."

She said almost 54 per cent of the Navy Nurse Corps officers are in the grade of lieutenant. About half (almost 500) of this group have more than 10 years service and some have as much as 20 years' service. They range in age from 26 to 56.

Because of present grade limitations, she testified, "the possibility of promotion is very remote for many of these women."

Captain Jackson urged enactment of the new legislation (HR 2460) as a means of providing "a dynamic career pattern for the nurses in the Navy."

Capt. Hugh M. Robinson, USN, of the Bureau of Naval Personnel explained the principal changes in existing law as they affect the Navy.

He noted that present law provides no promotions to the grade of captain in the Nurse Corps, although the Director is authorized, while serving in that position, to have the rank, pay and allowances of a captain.

The new proposal authorizes a limited number of Nurse Corps officers to serve in the grade of captain and increases the number of officers who may serve in the grade of commander. It also removes the limitation on the number of nurses who may serve in the grade of lieutenant commander.

At present, with a strength of about 2100, the Navy Nurse Corps is authorized no captains, 37 commanders and 163 lieutenant commanders. As previously noted, the new law would authorize the Navy to promote four officers to the grade of captain, 105 to the grade of commander and an unlimited number to the grade of lieutenant commander, for a strength of 2100.

In the Medical Service Corps, the two percent limitation on captains would be removed and the number who could serve

Approve 34 Of 37 Recommendations On USNR Promotions; Would Amend Act

Secretary of the Navy Charles S. Thomas has approved all but three of the 37 recommendations made by the Johnson Board—officially known as the Reserve Officer Promotion Evaluation Board.

The action affects the careers of 225,000 Reserve officers.

In submitting its report to the Secretary, the Board, headed by VAdm. Felix B. Johnson, asked that legislation be sought to amend the Reserve Officer Personnel Act to allow selection boards to pick for accelerated promotion a number not in excess of five per cent of the officers (including TAR's) authorized to be chosen from within the zone. Minimum times-in-grade on active status were prescribed for the various ranks.

Admiral Johnson's Board felt that the privilege of accelerated advancement should be extended to all officers, Regulars and Reserves, both active and inactive.

The Navy, however, rejected this proposition on the grounds that "only in is-

Navy-Designed Radio "Hears" Invisible Stars

The Navy and the Bendix Aviation Corp., Baltimore, Md., in a joint announcement reveal that radio equipment so sensitive that it can "hear" invisible stars is in production.

The ultra-sensitive radio, known as "Minitrack," will be used to track the first man-made "moon" which will be launched during the International Geophysical Year (31 July 1957 to 31 Dec. 1958).

The original "Minitrack," designed and built by the Naval Research Laboratory, and 11 others being built by Bendix, will be placed along the American continents to tune in the radio beams of the miniature "moon" as it swings around the earth.

The United States' earth-satellite program calls for the launching of additional "moons" as part of U. S. participation in the IGY. The satellites will be used to collect data by scientific measurements in interplanetary space. Data picked up by the 20-inch spheres will be relayed by radio signals on a frequency of 108mc with a power of 10 to 50 milliwatts (thousandths of a watt). This is only one one-millionth as strong as the signal of a standard radio station which has a rating of 10 to 50 kilowatts.

Navy Group Completes Action On 317 Petty Officer Proposals; USMC Silent

The Navy has completed action on the entire slate of 317 recommendations submitted by petty officers who participated in the August 1956 San Diego, Calif., and Bainbridge, Md., Enlisted Career Conferences.

The Marine Corps has yet to come up with details of action taken on the 48-item package submitted by its Quantico, Va., Enlisted Panel. Of the 48 suggestions made by senior enlisted Leathernecks, 23 require Congressional legislation for implementation. The remaining 25 can be placed into effect at the Headquarters level. A summary of the Marine suggestions appeared in the 6 Oct. 1956 edition of THE JOURNAL.

In its consideration of enlisted suggestions to improve career attractiveness, the Navy broke the 317 recommendations into four major categories.

The largest group, made up of 148 suggestions (47 per cent), falls into the command attention and information category. These suggestions require no corrective action other than to get the information to the men.

The second largest group, comprised of 78 suggestions (25 per cent), were found to be infeasible or invalid. In some cases, the proposals were rejected because of the large amounts of money which would be required for implementation. In other cases, the men were not aware of actions being taken in Washington, D. C.

Army Navy Air Force Journal 7
16 Feb. 1957 (Vol. 94, P. 727)

The third category is made up of 52 suggestions (15 per cent), which can be solved only by Congressional action or action above the Navy Department level.

Finally, 39 proposals (12 per cent), will be solved by command action in the field.

Plan Promotion Of 221 Air Force Nurses, Medical Specialists; Hold Down Top Ranks

Enactment of the Nurses-Medical Specialist Career Bill will permit the Air Force to promote 218 nurses and three medical specialists to the permanent grade of Major next year.

Maj. Howard C. Hensly, jr., USAF, Office of the Surgeon General of the Air Force, told the Kilday House Armed Services Subcommittee that promotions to the ranks of colonel and lieutenant colonel will not be affected by the new legislation.

Promotions to the two top grades, he said, will continue to be made "to meet Air Force requirements only." At present, the Air Force has nine permanent lieutenant colonels and no permanent colonels.

Col. Francis Lay, Chief of the Air Force Nurse Corps and Col. Audre Underkoffler, Chief of the Medical Specialist Corps, both testified in favor of the bill.

Colonel Lay said she believes the measure will "gradually alleviate the extreme shortage of career nurses." Colonel Underkoffler told the Subcommittee that the bill "will greatly assist in the procurement and retention of highly trained and experienced dietitians, physical therapists, and occupational therapists." She said the plan also will give officers in the Medical Specialist Corps "the same promotion opportunities available to other AF officers below the grade of lieutenant colonel."

Major Hensley presented a detailed explanation of the bill as it affects the Air Force. He said:

The proposed change in initial regular

Col. Dewey Heads Fiscal Unit For Far East Force

A five man Program-Budget Advisory Committee has been organized at AFPE/-Eighth Army Headquarters in Seoul, Korea, to assist in handling important financial problems.

Col. George C. Dewey, USA, AFPE/-Eighth Army Comptroller, will serve as Chairman.

The primary function of the Committee is to review the missions, programs, and policies of the Command in regards to the budget, and to recommend changes in the programs and policies where they see fit.

Besides Colonel Dewey, the board members are Col. Edward Chalgren, jr., USA, G-1; Col. Merrick H. Truly, USA, G-2; Col. William P. Mansboro, USA, G-3; and Col. Robert W. Duke, USA, G-4.

3-Story Radar Dome

A radar dome taller than a three story building has been developed by the Air Research and Development Command for use by the Air Force in protecting radar antenna from adverse weather conditions.

The new radar dome is 61 feet in diameter, and is more easily transported and erected than older models. Supported entirely by low air pressure, the radomes can withstand 100 mile-per-hour winds without collapsing.

Plattsburgh AFB Ready To Open Bids For 1,685 Capehart Family Housing Units

In preparation for the opening of bids on the $27,800,000 dependents' housing project at Plattsburgh Air Force Base on 19 Feb., contractors and suppliers met recently on invitation of the Purchasing and Contracting Office. Also attending was Thomas E. Hannigan, regional director of the Federal Housing Administration, Albany.

Under the program, there will be 396 two-bedroom units and 606 three-bedroom units for airmen in 169 buildings of two-story six-plex design, and 8 units of four-plex design. Total units for airmen will be 1,010.

Company grade officers, lieutenants and captains, will have 472 units. Of these, 94 will be two-bedroom units and 378 will be three-bedroom units, in buildings of two-story four-plex design.

Field grade officers, majors and lieutenants, will have 190 units in 95 duplex buildings, with three bedrooms per unit. There will be 13 four-bedroom single units for senior officers, colonels and above. The duplex and single residence buildings will be one story in height.

Matador "B" Is Slated For TAC at Orlando

The latest version of the Air Force's Matador TM-61B missile will be assigned to a new Tactical Air Command missile group at Orlando AFB, Fla.

The missile is scheduled for the 589th Tactical Missile Group, of the 4504th Tactical Missile Wing (Training) under the 9th Air Force.

TAC will employ the Martin TM-61B Matador in its mission to train for counter-air operations' interdiction efforts and as an all-weather weapon. Capable of carrying nuclear warheads, the TAC missile can be used in ground-to-ground operations to destroy the enemy's air fields, as well as cripple large troop concentrations and centers of transportation and communications critical to tactical warfare.

The new Matador model is capable of flying farther than the A model and has improved guidance equipment which gives it more accuracy than the earlier version.

Architectural drawings, photographs and models of the family dwellings were on display. Representatives of the architects, Kelly and Gruzen, Air Force Engineering and Contracting Officers, as well as Installations engineers and representatives of the Federal Housing Administration, were present to answer questions concerning designs, materials and construction requirements.

Although the project is one of the largest military housing programs in the United States, it will not meet all requirements of the Air Base. While this program, plus the 72 units now available will bring the total to 1,757, it has been estimated that many more family units will be required when the base is at full strength.

Construction will be financed under provisions of the Capehart Amendment to the National Housing Act, through government insured civil mortgage money. The mortgage liquidation is accomplished in 25 years under a plan which applies the occupants' quarters allowances to the credit of the Air Force which finally takes full title.

Cut out for provisions

projectiles or platoons

The size of the load can be large and bulky, the destination just about anywhere, when the versatile Fairchild C-123 takes over in logistic or assault missions.

With muscle enough for 16,000-pound bulk loads, the C-123 airlifts just about any load. And, little more than a pasture is needed for its airfield. 700 feet for landing, and only a little more for takeoff. C-123's bring men and supplies in and out of short, rough, unprepared fields, landing at regular eight second intervals. Proof that any large scale airlift is quicker and surer in the versatile, rugged C-123.

Here is assault and logistics performance that actually improves on military requirements—another good example of the reliability and big job capability that Fairchild builds into its aircraft.

Future of Missile Agency. The Department of Defense will open itself to a deluge of criticism from Congress and the press if it permits the Army's advanced missile research and development, together with the $58-million worth of equipment and the vast staff which support it at Redstone Arsenal, to die on the vine.

Yet such is the outlook unless there is a sharp turn in the trend of events within the next few months.

Redstone, home of the Army Ballistic Missile Agency, is the focal point and nerve center of the research and development program so successfully carried on by the Army with the blessing and approval of the Department of Defense until the Directive of last November curtailed the Army's operational use of missiles with ranges greater than 200 miles. Before that date the Department of Defense had coordinated at Redstone the Army and Navy development of the promising intermediate range (1500 mile) Jupiter missile. The new Directive specified that Army funds could not be used for this longer range missile development after 30 June 1957. Meanwhile, the Navy has withdrawn from the joint development project with the Army and it appears a certainty that the Air Force will prefer to devote its funds to its own ICBM project, the Thor, and will not have money to divert to the Army's Jupiter.

Thus, with no funds either from the Navy or the Air Force and prohibited from spending its own money for the purpose, it appears that the Army will have to curtail stringently the scope of its research and development at Redstone. Lt. Gen. Leslie R. Groves, USA-Ret., who led probably the most famous development project in history—that of the atomic bomb—succinctly described it as an order to build missiles that can go 200 miles but not 201 miles.

Yet at 80-square mile Redstone reservation the Army has some 1400 buildings, an airstrip, docks in the Tennessee River, a network of 120 miles of paved roads, 100 miles of railroad, six firing ranges, a 14-story tower for firing tests, a 600-foot ballistic track, and expensive instrumentation equipment. It is staffed by 6,700 civilian and military personnel including the highly skilled and talented group of American German-born specialists headed by the renowned Dr. Werner von Braun.

It behooves the Secretary of Defense and his Assistant for Guided Missiles to work out a plan for the efficient utilization of this great organization and its facilities. The Department would have considerable difficulty talking its way out of the public criticism that inevitably would arise if these facilities in talent and financial investment were to be lost to the field of long-range missiles for the over-all National Defense.

Better Careers for Nurses and Specialists. There is no doubt that the principle of offering better career opportunities to the nurses and medical specialists in the Armed Services not only is thoroughly justified—in fact, necessary—but also that it carries endorsement of all other Service personnel.

Under present conditions the Medical Departments of the three Services offer a strange paradox of career opportunities. In order to attract and retain the physicians and dentists so vital to the maintenance of the good health of all personnel, those entering the Service from these scarce categories are given original commissions as first lieutenants in the Army and Air Force or lieutenants (junior grade) in the Navy. In addition, all medical, dental, and veterinary officers are paid $100 a month over the regular pay scale. Furthermore, doctors and dentists are eligible for nurses and medical specialists are captains over 30 years of age.

The results of this neglect of careers in these categories are just what might be expected. The Army, which has lost 20 per cent of its nurses since Korea, has only 1,293 in its Regular establishment, while it needs 2,500. Nurses in the Regular Navy have fallen from 1,500 to 1,000 since 1952. The Air Force has 394 nurses and 24 medical specialists to fill 1,200 and 80 vacancies, respectively.

The glorious and self-sacrificing record of the nurses of all Services in Korea and in World War II has been the pride and inspiration of America. They, together with the newer and important medical specialists, deserve a new deal in career opportunities. Indeed, if it is not given to them it will be the Services as a whole that will suffer most.

QUOTES FROM THE JOURNAL

10 Years Ago (15 Feb. 1947)—Military power, with which to back the nation's foreign policy and provide a sound basis for collective security, is America's pressing need, Secretary of State Marshall affirmed in his first press interview. The bulwark of the nation's possible military power, and hence the bulwark of its foreign policy, he went on, will be found in universal military training.

50 Years Ago (16 Feb. 1907)—The country is marvelously prosperous, wages are high and the prospects all indicate a continuation of the present flourishing conditions. These very conditions, however, have made it increasingly difficult to recruit men of the desired quality for the Army and Navy, the pay in both services being so low as compared with the wages paid civilian vocations that the Government cannot compete with private employers in the labor market.

90 Years Ago (16 Feb. 1867)—Mr. Wilson reported the House Bill to increase the pay of the quartermaster-sergeant of the Engineer battalion to the same amount as that of the sergeant-major—$36 per month. It was passed after debate.

Military Pay Lag

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

The Cordiner Report, if carefully implemented, could result in correction of the Army's top heavy enlisted grade structure. If the E-9 were termed Master Sergeant, E-8 Technical Sergeant, E-7 Staff Sergeant, E-6 Sergeant, E-5 Corporal, E-4 Private First Class and E-1 through E-3 Privates, the grade structure would come closer to a reasonable balance. The rifle squad leader, under current tables, would then be only one grade higher than Corporal, which is the reasonable and traditional grade for the NCO in command of a squad. This rejuvenation of the grade structures would solve the problem of prestige for the NCO and would alleviate the irritation caused by the separation of Specialists from NCOs.

U. S. News and World Report, 26 Oct. issue, contains an article reporting that the income of the average U. S. family has gone up by 150% since 1941. Military pay has obviously failed to keep up with the national trend.

With the national average income increased by 150% since 1941 it appears reasonable that there should be at least 150% increase in military pay since 1922. Calculations indicate that the proposed pay for officers falls short of this 150% increase by percentages shown:

Major General	22 years	22%
Brigadier General	22 years	12%
Colonel	21 years	24%
Lieutenant Colonel	20 years	33%
Major	14 years	29%
Captain	7 years	25%
1st Lieutenant	3 years	23%
2d Lieutenant		29%

Active duty pay supplemental is not included since, due to its temporary nature, it will in effect become a taxed allowance, not pay.

Similar calculations for enlisted personnel, assuming the E-9 is a Master Sergeant and E-3 a Private, would show increases over the 150% (longevity not considered).

E-9 Master Sergeant	37%
E-8 Technical Sergeant/First Sergeant	44%
E-7 Staff Sergeant	66%
E-6 Sergeant	85%
E-5 Corporal	100%
E-4 Private First Class	87%
E-3 Private	90%
E-2 Private	65%
E-1 Private	50%

The same calculations, assuming titles remain unchanged, show the following comparison to a 150% increase over 1922 as a norm:

E-7—4% short
E-6—19% over
E-5—17% over
E-4—4% over
E-3—6% short
E-2—15% over
E-1—50% over

It appears that special pay for doctors will continue as a source of irritation and lowered morale in line branches. Their initial commission as First Lieutenant and more rapid promotion coupled with the special pay may be justified but nevertheless is a blow to the prestige and pride of the line officer whose primary mission is command.

Hot Hats

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

Your 22 December item on PX sales of the new Army uniforms prodded me into a belated expression of my ideas on two subjects.

The first is the service rendered to members by the A&AFES. During my less-than-one-year presence in the Washington area it has become most obvious that the broadest selection of items, the greatest interest in individual suggestions, the most courteous service, and the greatest economy in purchase prices in this area are tendered by the Marine Corps PX at Henderson Hall, Arlington. I must admit that this conclusion confirms earlier suspicions developed during a previous year's tour with the Navy and another one year's tour at an Air Base at a remote location.

The second concerns the new Army green cap. Those of us in the Washington area were authorized to wear this cap as an optional item during the late (and exceptionally cool) summer of 1956. Many officers, interested in their appearance, purchased this new, heavy fur-felt cap. It proved to be much more uncomfortable to all of my acquaintances than the authorized light-weight tan cap, and most of us put our new purchases away for winter wear. The news that this cap will be mandatory for summer wear on 1 May 1957 is most unhappy. I believe comfort should be a consideration in specifying a uniform. I trust that the Quartermaster General of the Army, or his superiors or subordinates who are responsible for this decision, will be considerate and agile enough to authorize a cap of the same shade but of tropical weight for wear this coming summer. For those south of Washington the hope is much more important.

Tenth Anniversary of "Integrated Navy Supply System" Sees BuS&A Buying, Storing, and Issuing 1 1/3 Million Items

SUPER-SONIC aircraft, guided missile launching vessels and nuclear-powered ships have changed the whole logistic complexion of today's Navy. To meet the supply needs of this dynamic, new fleet and, at the same time, meet the urgent requirements for economy, a flexible Supply System, able to quickly respond to changed logistics requirements is essential.

The Navy's Bureau of Supplies and Accounts is, this month, celebrating the Tenth Anniversary of the new, post-war Supply System that was designed and planned with the flexibility necessary to achieve both economy and Fleet efficiency. This Plan, formally termed the "Integrated Navy Supply System," is aimed at meeting the challenge of new technology and the operational needs at the lowest possible cost.

The Plan that brought this new System into being was approved by the then Secretary of the Navy James Forrestal on 14 February 1947. This new Plan came about because of a supply experience in World War II which demanded some change.

During that war, "splinter" and completely independent supply systems sprang up to support such "war-born" equipments and units as radar, electronics and construction battalions. The result was a division of supply responsibilities. For the consumer, this often meant too much of one item and not enough of another, because each of the new "systems" often endeavored to stock the same item—although under separate stock numbers.

THE OLD SYSTEM was costly to maintain. Its separate, uncoordinated distribution systems sometimes caused one area to do without parts that were rusting away as "excess" in another supply center.

The purpose of the new Integrated Supply System is to do away with this expensive duplication. Under the concept of the new System, the "splinter" supply systems born of wartime necessity were gathered back into a single logistic support organization.

To do this, the post-war Forrestal system emphasizes the technical bureaus' responsibility for design, engineering and control of the final use of material. But the responsibility for managing the supply tasks of procurement, storage and issue were assigned to the Bureau of Supplies and Accounts. This Bureau was also made accountable for administration and coordination of the System.

By accepting the responsibility for determination of requirements and control of inventories of repair parts and supplies, the Navy Supply System has relieved the technical bureaus of this function. The transfer of this has been accomplished without loss of technical bureau responsibility or control over the performance characteristics of the item.

THE SIZE OF THE JOB is formidable. In 1957, 270 types of aircraft, 8,000 types of electronic equipment and 170,000 types of motors, engines, boilers, turbines and other operating equipment are supported under the System. Everything from medical gauze bandages to jet engine spare parts are included in the System.

To support such a variety of equipment, the System maintains control over almost one and one-third million different items of supplies and repair parts. In addition, the System obtains large numbers of other items that represent occasional or one-time demands—such as special technical items to support DEEP FREEZE operations in the Antarctic.

The rate of technological change is another astonishing and challenging part of the System's responsibility. The destroyer of 1937 used only 60 electron tubes. A comparable destroyer today uses over 4,000 tubes!

To make certain that this huge assortment of supplies are delivered where and when needed, the System has as its nerve center 15 "Supply Demand Control Points." These intelligence centers, which do procurement, distribution, budgeting, cataloging, and control functions for specified types of material, manage items that range from pencil erasers to jet engine repair parts.

IT IS THE JOB of these activities to keep up with and forecast the changing supply demands of the Navy. By accepting the responsibility for determination of requirements and control of the inventories of repair parts and supplies, the Supply System is able to improve the responsiveness, efficiency and economy of the system.

In deciding whether to buy or redistribute, economy is a prime consideration. If heavyweight ship anchors would cost more to ship to the point of need than to buy new at a nearby location, the inventory manager procures directly from industry or obtains the item from other services, depending on which course is least expensive.

RADM. ARNOLD
Chief, BuS&A

END OF THE LINE—Supplies purchased, stored and issued by the Bureau of Supplies and Accounts reach their ultimate destination here as the supply ship USS Aludra, left, sends cargo nets full of provisions over the China Sea to the Aircraft carrier USS Hornet during operations off Formosa. The USS St. Paul is seen moving into position to come alongside for her supplies.

Although the 15 Inventory Control Points divide up responsibility along material lines (i.e., all aviation supplies at one center, all ships parts at another, etc., as shown in "Navy Supply Demand Control Points" on this page) the consumer who needs an item immediately still has to go to only one supply point to get all his supplies, from gauze bandages to guided missile repair parts.

It is, in fact, the job of the "intelligence centers" to receive reports from the various supply centers and depots on stock level position and evaluate them to meet local requirements. The local "retailers" maintain a flow of stock status reports to the various specialized inventory managers. It is from this detailed flow that operational requirements are matched with usage information.

TO MAKE CERTAIN that the control points do not duplicate each others' work (i.e., that the aviation and ships parts offices are not both buying the same engine gaskets that both use) the Chief, Bureau of Supplies and Accounts, administers and controls the System. RADM. R. J. Arnold, SC, USN, as Bureau Chief is responsible for this effective top management integration.

Just one example of what coordination at the top level means in economy shows how valuable the System's concept of centralized administration (in Washington) and decentralized operation (in the control points) is found in the stock coordination and standardization program. This program, aimed at eliminating duplications, has done completely away with 114,000 items since the inception of the new Supply System. In addition, 32,000 item duplications have been eliminated.

This explains why, under the integrated supply concept, the total number of items controlled has decreased 12% at a time when technological additions of new parts to the System has been creating new stock numbers at the greatest rate in history in the post-World War II era of more and more complicated electronic equipment and new, complicated weapons and techniques.

The Bureau believes that the future of its 10-year-old System holds great opportunity for improvement and refinement of the System's procedures. For example, shipboard allowance lists are being standardized and simplified, automatic data processing and fast data transmission are being expanded and methods are being developed to obtain complete supply usage information as material is used, instead of when it is issued.

THE TENTH ANNIVERSARY is therefore being used to assess the future problems of the System and set new goals for better support of the new, jet-age Navy. In doing this the Bureau is confident that the decade of progress being marked this month has made it clear that the Forrestal-approved System contains the flexibility to meet this challenge in these days of nuclear-powered ships.

Navy Gives Warrants To 33 Petty Officers

The Navy has issued temporary appointments as warrant officer, W-1, to 32 chief petty officers and one petty officer, first class.

These appointments bring to a total of 501 the number named from a 695-man eligibility list established by the Bureau of Naval Personnel selection board which met on 3 April 1956.

The names of the new warrants and their categories are:

To Boatswain—BMC William D. Boynton, QMC James C. Garden, BMC Francis D. Gates, BMC Crowson L. Icehour, QMC Louis W. Karl and QMC Lewis E. Talton.

To Aviation Maintenance Technician—ADC Carl M. Giggsey and ADC Leroy Peoples.

To Machinist—BTC Raymond W. Brown, MMC George Hadfield, MMC Homer C. Thompson, ENCA (SS) Clyde L. McLaughlin and MMC William Mulligan, Jr.

To Communication Technician—CTC's Dee Adkins, Charles L. Cox, James W. Hill, Richard S. Katzenberger, Robert R. Farrell and Martin R. Fisher.

To Electronic Technician—CTC Harry J. Belles, ETC Ambrose H. Partch, SOC Hubert E. Stewart, RMC (SS) Joseph R. Arnett, SOC Jack H. Bechard, RMC (SS) Frederick J. Donnelly, TEC Harry L. Dracoules, RMC Steve S. Dudley, ETC Edward W. Roman-ski and GSC Cyril M. Vedomske.

To Ship Repair Technician—MEC John C. Bohline and DCC Robert W. Condon.

To Construction Electrician—CECA Maurice F. Matthewson.

To Aviation Electronics Technician—AEC John L. Tennant.

CORDINER COMMITTEE MEMBERS are studying carefully initial reactions from the field to the new pay adjustment plan to see what changes, if any, need to be made to assure complete equity. Chairman Cordiner and his associates recognize that some problem areas are inevitable—for example, the cases of the officers who were commissioned following a number of years of enlisted service (See Page 2). THERE WILL BE RELUCTANCE in the Committee to open up the plan to great numbers of modifications for fear that the essential objective—to eliminate longevity in favor of "pay for merit"—will be jeopardized. The feeling is that the long-range gains of the pay plan are so advantageous to most career people that temporary pay dislocations will not create serious difficulties. CORDINER COMMITTEE AIDES ASSURE, however, that careful study will be given to all suggested modifications, and that some additional "savings" features may be written into the final version of the bill.

ARMY PLANS TO ABANDON HORSES for funerals at Arlington National Cemetery may be upset as a result of a protest letter to the Pentagon from Chairman Carl Vinson (D-Ga) of the House Armed Services Committee. Unless the Army action is reversed, Defense Department people testifying on Capitol Hill in the next month can anticipate withering questions in the Armed Services and Appropriations Committees on this sensitive subject. INVOLVED THIS WEEK in an exchange of letters, published in full on Page 3 of this issue, were Chairman Vinson, Secretary Brucker and a 10 year old girl who asked Mr. Vinson to please get her one of the horses.

THE FUTURE OF THE MILITARY DOG is in fiscal jeopardy. First, the Army decided to retire its mules. Next, it grounded the Pigeon Corps. To save some more money, the Army gave tradition a kick and announced plans to substitute motor-driven hearses for two caissons and 17 horses (16 matched grays and a black) used in funerals at Arlington National Cemetery. WHAT ABOUT THE DOGS? Pentagon observers scent an early decision to abandon their use as part of the overall animal economy effort. (The Air Force also uses dogs—many of them assigned to SAC as air base sentries.)

THE AF'S CAMPAIGN to win favor among high school students will be accented during 1957 with plans for some 1500 speeches by alumni at Commencement ceremonies or on another prominent occasion during the school year. The speeches will be featured in connection with the Service's 50th anniversary.

AF HEADQUARTERS PEOPLE have been instructed in the procedure for preparing items for White House Information Briefs, which are used to keep the President up-to-the-minute on developments in Government agencies. The AF order makes the point that briefs "should be written in short sentences of everyday English, in order to minimize any need for further editing."

MOST RADIO STATIONS in the U. S. sign on and off with playing of the National Anthem. In Warner Robins, Ga., Station WRPB pays tribute to adjacent Robins AFB by using "The Air Force Song." At the end of each broadcast day, announcement is made that "While the nation sleeps tonight, we rest with the assurance that the Air Force is watching over us, always alert in the defense of our country."

PRESSURE WILL MOUNT for an early Defense Department decision on the relative merits of the Army's Nike vs. the Navy's Talos missile for anti-aircraft defense, here and abroad. Congressional committees, now entering into detailed examination of the fiscal '58 budget, will probe for answers to the long-standing inter-Service problem, with its related cost factor. ARMY PEOPLE BELIEVE that new Nike missiles, such as "the greatly improved" Hercules, are superior to the Talos. The greater range of the Hercules, says the Army, answers the problem of the NATO nations for missiles that provide for distant "kills." THE ARMY IS HOPEFUL the Defense Department will recognize Nike as a more effective weapon than Talos, both for use in the U. S. and overseas. It can be taken for granted that Allied nations, particularly the U.K., will be watching closely the current evaluation of the missile weapons. The interest of the NATO countries, not to mention Congressional concern over possibility of unnecessary duplication, will speed high-level Pentagon decisions.

COST OF A FATAL INJURY to a uniformed member of the Army is estimated to average $27,800; for an Army civilian, it's $44,200. These are the figures used in connection with the Army Safety Program. Military fatal injury costs cover survivor benefits, Government insurance, unused training investment, death gratuity payment and cost of shipping and burial of remains.

THE NAVY WANTS $50 MILLION for construction of a dry dock repair site at the San Francisco Naval Shipyard for Forrestal class carriers. A contract of $1.1 million has been let for design, plans and specifications.

SERVICE PERSONNEL LEADERS will find it difficult to resolve Rep. Kilday's concern over "out-of-line" promotions (see Page 1) with the strong emphasis in the Cordiner Committee study on pushing top notch officers ahead to higher ranks and increased responsibilities. The Services feel that present programs provide an equitable balance, all the way around, between adequate recognition for seniority and superior performance of duty, in the light of military needs. THERE IS NO QUESTION, however, that the implications of the Cordiner Report and SecDef Wilson's related instructions to the Service Secretaries will result in a new survey of promotion policies, both in officer and enlisted ranks. Officers can count on stiffer selection board action if the Cordiner pay plan is adopted.

NEW NAVY WEAPONS have not meant a gain in items that are carried by the Bureau of Supplies and Accounts. In 1951, BuSandA listed 1,327,000 items; that's been reduced to 1,166,000. Thousands of other items will be eliminated.

EFFORTS WILL BE MADE to amend Cordiner Committee recommendations to boost hazardous duty pay for officers and enlisted men, who now receive $110 and $50 per month, respectively, for such service as parachute jumping, deep sea diving, human acceleration or deceleration studies and duty involving exposure to lepers. The Committee's conclusion was that there was not yet evidence to show that an increase in these categories was needed as part of the problem of attracting and retaining personnel. THE ARMY AIRBORNE ASSOCIATION, among other groups, feels differently; it wants hazardous duty pay increased to put it in better alignment with current and proposed pay scales.

Col. Beck To Alaska, Will Be Deputy Comdr.

Col. Thomas H. Beck, USA, will become Deputy Commander, United States Army, Alaska, and 2d Infantry Division in March. He has been named for one-star rank.

An Infantry officer now stationed at Ft. Benning, Ga., Colonel Beck will succeed Brig. Gen. John F. Ruggles, USA. He will also become Commander, Yukon Command.

Colonel Beck enlisted in the Army in 1927 as a private, and served with the 83d Field Artillery Battalion until his appointment to the U. S. Military Academy in 1929. He was graduated in 1933.

The Colonel's wife, the former Rosalyn A. Pate, and their 15-year-old daughter, Brenda Frances, are expected to accompany Colonel Beck to Alaska.

TIC Pub Info Office

Given Added Tasks

The Public Information Office at the Army Infantry Center at Ft. Benning, Ga., has reorganized its Information Section to include in its responsibility for both public and troop information activities.

The move is to bring the information activities together in one office to include both the civilian and military. The present Troop Information and Education Section was discontinued with Troop Information redesignated as a division of the Information Service. The Education Section will be transferred to the Educational Section of the Infantry Center G-1 (Personnel) Section.

Lt. Col. James R. Connor, The Infantry Center public information officer, has become chief of the Information Section. Continuing as executive and administrative officer will be Capt. Ralph W. Stieglitz. 1st Lt. James H. Clark assumes duties as the new troop information officer.

NOBODY TAKES A BACK SEAT with USAA Insurance

- ★ USAA is the oldest, largest and strongest non-profit insurance organization serving the armed forces officer.
- ★ USAA is under the direction and management of active and retired officers of the Armed Services.
- ★ Because all funds are pooled for mutual protection, USAA can offer insurance at lowest possible cost, with large savings realized in generous annual dividends.
- ★ USAA operates in the United States, its possessions, territories; Canada, Cuba, Canal Zone, Japan; certain U. S. military bases in the Pacific, Philippines and in Western Continental Europe.
- ★ No matter whether you are stateside, or overseas, USAA is as close as your nearest mailbox, telephone or telegraph office.

Wherever you serve you'll find officers from all branches in complete agreement on United Services Automobile Association. They're reading to sound-off about USAA's low cost auto insurance, and the complete protection that is yours whether you're in Paris, Texas or Paris, France . . . Frankfurt, Germany or Frankfort, Kentucky. No insurance organization primarily serving the armed forces out-ranks USAA for size, safety, service and savings for policyholders. USAA is strictly a non-profit organization under the responsible management of active and retired service officers. Our strength through 34 years of operation has come from insuring officers and warrant officers of the armed forces, recognized preferred risks. In 1955 over seven million dollars of dividends were paid in the states to 262,161 members, amounting to an average saving of 44% of the standard manual premiums on automobiles. Take advantage of the greater savings, protection, and reliability offered by USAA.

The Trust You Have Placed in Us

FREDERICK R. KAPPEL, President
American Telephone and Telegraph Company

"The telephone business is built on the idea of Service.... And the principles that guide our work affect the lives of many people. We are printing them here because they seem important to everyone who uses the telephone, everyone who works for the business, and everyone who has invested in it."

We in the telephone business are servants of the public. The services we perform are necessary to the people of the United States. They are necessary to the building of our nation and to our national security. Clearly, we occupy a position of great public trust.

We are also trustees for the savings of every individual who has put money in the business. It is our responsibility that the business shall prosper.

We think it all-important therefore that we furnish the best telephone service it is in our power to provide—a service high in value and steadily improving—at a cost to the user that will always be as low as possible and at the same time keep the business in good financial health.

The success of the business depends on the people in it. To serve well and prosper, Bell Telephone Companies must attract and keep capable employees.
They must be well paid and have opportunity to advance in accordance with ability.
And we must continually develop first-rate leaders for the future.

Finally, it seems to us that it is always our duty to act for the long run. Sound financing, good earnings, reasonable and regular dividends—these are all long-term projects. So is our continual research to find better means for giving better service.
So is the building of the human organization and character on which good service depends. So is the training of leaders. In all our undertakings, the long view is essential.

This is the way we understand the trust you have placed in us. It is a trust that deserves, and will continue to receive, the most painstaking care we can give it.

Working together to bring people together

Army Nurse Corps-Medical Specialist Plan Authorizes 6 Perm Col's, 127 Perm Lt Col's

The Army is asking for a fixed strength of 2500 Regular Nurses and 350 Medical Specialists.

Authority requested in the new Nurse-Specialist Career Bill (HR 2460) also provides for five permanent colonels and 107 lieutenant colonels in the Nurse Corps and one permanent colonel and 20 lieutenant colonels in the Medical Specialist Corps.

The number who can serve as permanent majors and captains is not limited.

If the legislation is enacted as proposed, the Army plans to make the following permanent promotions during the new fiscal year which begins on 1 July: three officers to the grade of colonel; 50 to lieutenant colonel and 894 to major in the Nurse Corps. In the Medical Specialist Corps, 10 officers will be promoted to the permanent grade of lieutenant colonel and 72 to major.

Col. Harriet Lee, Chief of the Army Medical Specialist Corps, told the Kilday House Armed Services Subcommittee that the grade structure of the AMSC "should be on an equitable basis with the grade structure of other corps in the Army for positions of comparable responsibility." She pointed out that the AMSC "is the only Corps in the Army for which there is no authorization at this time for the permanent grade of lieutenant colonel."

Col. Inez Haynes, Chief of the Army Nurse Corps, testified before the Subcommittee last week (THE JOURNAL, 9 Feb.). She said the increased promotion opportunities should help the Nurse Corps to solve many of its problems.

Lt. Col. E. L. Waddell, Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Personnel, discussed the changes which the proposed plan makes in present laws governing the promotion and retirement of Nurses and Medical Specialists.

The major changes concern five areas of the ANC and AMSC: initial appointment in the Regular corps; size of the Regular corps; grades authorized; permanent promotions and retirement.

At present, Regular appointments in the grade of second or first lieutenant in both Corps is determined by a combination of age and service. The applicant is appointed as a 2d Lt if she is 27 or less and has less than three years active commissioned service; she is appointed as a 1st Lt if she is 30 or less and has three years active commissioned service; the maximum ages may be increased as much as five years if active commissioned service was performed after 31 Dec. 1947.

The new proposal changes the date of 31 Dec. 1947 to 7 Dec. 1941. This will permit appointment in the Regular Army of women with WW II experience.

In addition, the legislation permits appointment of Regular captains. The maximum age is 39 and the active commissioned service criterion is established at more than seven but less than 14 years promotion list service.

As previously noted, the proposal authorizes a Regular ceiling in each corps:

2500 Nurses and 350 Medical Specialists, including six colonels and 127 lieutenant colonels.

The number of majors will be controlled by promotion list service; that is, all captains who are selected as fully qualified for promotion are promoted to the permanent grade of major at 14 years' service. This means that ANC and AMSC officers can aspire to the rank of major in a normal career.

At present, captains are selected for promotion to major on a "best qualified" basis. The proposed legislation provides for promotion to major on a "fully qualified basis without regard to vacancies."

Promotion to lieutenant colonel will continue on a "best qualified basis to fill vacancies," and the same procedure will be used for selections to colonel.

Permanent promotions to first lieutenant and captain will continue to be made at the completion of three and seven years' service, respectively, on a "fully qualified" basis.

Retirement continues to be mandatory at age 60. It also becomes mandatory for a major when she completes 25 years of service for promotion, for a lieutenant colonel when she completes 28 years of service and for a colonel when she completes 30 years' service or five years in grade, whichever comes later.

However, the Secretary of the Army is given discretionary authority to retain majors until they complete 28 years' of service and lieutenant colonels until they complete 30 years' service.

Eight colonels, 69 lieutenant colonels and 104 majors will be mandatorily retired through fiscal year 1962 under the new provisions.

Officers promoted under the new provisions before 1 January 1958 "may not be retired" before two years after the date of their promotion, even though they might otherwise come under the mandatory retirement provisions.

The proposal also establishes a separate promotion list for nurses and medical specialists. This is not currently required by law but has been administratively established.

HR 2460 also changes the method of computing retirement pay for those mandatorily retired. The new system will be the same as that used for other Regular Army officers. Retirement pay will be computed on years of service creditable for promotion rather than years of active Federal service. Other provisions of law permit computation of retirement pay on service creditable for pay purposes if this is a higher amount.

Captains who are twice passed over to the grade of major will be mandatorily eliminated, provided they are not within two years of being qualified for retirement.

The Subcommittee has completed open hearings on the legislation and is expected to send the plan back to the full Committee next week. THE JOURNAL will report any changes which come out of the executive sessions.

Turner AFB Goes To Tactical Air

Turner Air Force Base, Albany, Ga., will be transferred on 1 April from the Strategic Air Command to the Tactical Air Command.

In announcing the shift, the Air Force said the 31st Strategic Fighter Wing, now at Turner, also will be transferred from SAC to TAC. It will be redesignated the 31st Fighter-Bomber Wing and remain at Turner.

SAC's 4080th Strategic Reconnaissance Wing will move from Turner to Laughlin Air Force Base, Del Rio, Tex.

All of the changes will take place on 1 April.

In addition, SAC will change the designation of the 508th Air Refueling Squadron to the 99th Air Refueling Squadron, effective 30 June, and move it to Westover Air Force Base, Mass., shortly thereafter. Only the new squadron designation and squadron personnel will be moved. Equipment and aircraft of the squadron will remain at Turner.

SAC's 811th Air Base Group will be absorbed by TAC and a new TAC refueling squadron, the 431st, activated last month, will receive the KB-50 tankers.

The Air Force said personnel strength at Turner will remain about the same. A TAC unit which has not yet been named will be moved to the Georgia base.

1ST LT. ROBERT F. PATTON, USMC, smiles with his wife Oida after he had been awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross in ceremonies at the El Toro Marine Corps Air Station. A member of Marine Helicopter Transport Squadron 361 at Santa Ana Marine Corps Air Facility, he received the Medal for rescuing two Marines and 22 Korean Nationals in December, 1955, from a sinking ship. Maj. Gen. Clayton C. Jerome, USMC, Commanding General of Aircraft, Fleet Marine Force, Pacific, made the presentation.

Seeks Veterans Unit

Formation of a Senate Committee on Veterans' Affairs is asked in legislation (S. Res. 86) introduced by Senator Warren G. Magnuson, (D-Wash.).

He said the new committee could "handle veterans legislation more expeditiously" than the present "divided responsibility" shared by Senate Finance Committee and Senate Labor and Public Welfare Committee.

"Now, veterans legislation is referred to either of these committees," Senator Magnuson said. "That means those committees—already overburdened with legislation relating strictly to finance or labor or social security—must also handle veterans legislation."

The new committee, charged with sole responsibility of considering legislation affecting veterans, could "overcome some of the bottlenecks encountered previously," he stated.

Under the Magnuson resolution, nine Senators would constitute the new committee on veterans affairs, with five serving from the majority party and four from the minority party in the Senate.

Commandant Departs

General Randolph McC. Pate, Commandant of the Marine Corps, left for an inspection tour of Marine Corps installations in the Caribbean area 15 Feb.

His first stop en route to the Caribbean will be at Charleston, S. C. where he will address the Corps of Cadets at the Citadel on 16 Feb. The remainder of General Pate's itinerary will include Guantanamo, Cuba on 16 Feb.; San Juan, Puerto Rico, 18 Feb.; Ciudad Trujillo, Dominican Republic, 20 Feb.; Port au Prince, Haiti and Havana, Cuba on 21 Feb.; Key West, Fla, 22 Feb. and Miami, Fla. on the 25th.

USAF Chaplains Meet

The mood of the world today is one of anxiety and its ethic is that of self-interest, Dr. Samuel Enoch Stumpf told Staff Chaplains of the Air Force who opened their four day annual conference 11 Feb. in Washington, D. C.

Dr. Stumpf is chairman of the Department of Philosophy of Vanderbilt University.

More than 40 Chaplains from all major Air Force Commands throughout the world attended the conference. Other activities in the opening day's session included reports from various Chaplains on programs conducted within their Commands.

Principal speaker at Tuesday's session was Stephen P. Kennedy, Police Commissioner of New York City, who spoke on "The Police Officer and Youth."

Guard Bureau Will Hold Ad Agency Competition

The National Guard Bureau will hold briefings on 1 March for advertising agencies interested in contracting for advertising and public relations services.

The current contract expires 30 June.

The mission of the Guard Bureau in this field is to provide printed material, graphics, displays and radio and television material for use by National Guard organizations in the states and territories in recruiting campaigns.

The Agency awarded this contract "will be required to conduct a public relations program to support the National Guard recruiting program and to keep the public informed on the National Guard's mission as an integral part of our country's first line of defense and as reserve components of the Army and the Air Force," a Pentagon announcement said.

The current contract has been held since 1 July 1955, by Robert W. Orr & Associates, Inc. of New York.

The contract period is one year with an option for renewal. The amount of the contract for the fiscal year which will expire on 30 June is $300,000.

THE Rascal was unveiled this week as the Defense Department authorized publication of this photograph showing the long-range, rocket-powered air-to-surface guided missile. It was designed and produced by Bell Aircraft Corp. of Buffalo, N. Y.

Rascal has undergone extensive flight testing against simulated targets at Holloman Air Development Center, N. M., where it has been carried aloft and launched from B-47, B-36 and B-50 bombardment aircraft.

The supersonic missile is designed for use in conjunction with manned bombers as an aid for penetrating enemy defenses. It is "air-lifted" to within a safe distance from the enemy's defenses and then shoots out towards its target, which can be tactical or strategic.

Combined with high altitude, high speed bombers, Rascal can be delivered against targets without exposing bomber aircraft to concentrated local defense.

2,000 Promotions

motion picture:

ARMY—During the next fiscal year, there will be 320 promotions to majors and 20 to lieutenant colonel in the Nurse Corps, with a total of 500 to major, 101 to lieutenant colonel and 5 to colonel forecast in the period to 1963.

The Army Medical Specialist Corps plans 26 advancements to major and 3 to lieutenant colonel in the next year and a total of 79 to major, 29 to lieutenant colonel and 1 to colonel in the next five years.

AIR FORCE—There will be 96 promotions to major next year; the five-year total includes 125 Nurse and 5 MSC advancements to major.

NAVY—The Navy expects to make 663 Nurse promotions next year to lieutenant commander, 25 to commander and 1 to captain. During the next five years, Nurse Corps promotions will total 880 to lieutenant commander, 77 to commander and 4 to captain. Also expected by 1963 are 7 promotions to captain among Navy Medical Specialists.

Additionally, of course, there will be a number of permanent promotions.

Navy Tells Plans For Nurse Corps Career Changes

in that grade in the future would be controlled by the line fraction and running mate principles as is now the case with all other staff corps except the Nurse Corps.

Here is what Captain Robinson told the Subcommittee about the promotion and retirement features of the bill, the composition of selection boards, and changes which the Navy would like to make in the measure:

Promotion

Under present law, nurses are selected to the grade of lieutenant commander on a "best fitted" basis. The new bill permits the selection on a "fitted" basis of all qualified NC lieutenants who are in the promotion zone.

Retirement

Under present law, all Navy Nurses must be retired at age 62, within certain discretionary provisions. Nurses serving in the grades of commander and lieutenant commander may be retired upon completion of 20 years of active service or upon reaching age 55 whichever is later. Lieutenants and below may be retired upon completion of 20 years of active service or upon reaching age 50 whichever is later.

The new proposal provides mandatory retirement for Nurse Corps captains, commanders and lieutenant commanders upon completion of 30 years of active service or upon reaching age 55 whichever is earlier. If the needs of the service require, some commanders and captains could be retained beyond this point on a year to year basis. Lieutenants and below would be retired upon completion of 20 years of service or upon reaching age 50, whichever is later.

Selection Boards

Under present law, selection boards to consider NC and MSC officers for promotion are composed entirely of Medical Officers. The new bill provides that one-third of the members of the appropriate boards will be senior officers of the NC or MSC.

Amendments

Present law provides that the Director of Nurses be appointed from among Nurse Corps officers holding permanent appointments in the grade of commander or lieutenant commander.

The Navy asks that the new proposal authorize appointment of the Director from among NC officers holding permanent appointments in the grade of lieutenant commander or above.

Women officers now in the Medical Service Corps were appointed and are promoted under the WAVE law. They receive only limited promotional opportunity beyond the grade of lieutenant.

In addition to the women already in the MSC, there also are 36 Nurses who are about to transfer to the MSC under Public Law 606 of the 84th Congress. This law authorizes these women to be appointed and promoted in the MSC under either the WAVE law or laws applicable to male officers of the MSC. A large majority have chosen male type appointments.

Since male officers in the MSC receive free promotional opportunity to the grade of lieutenant commander, this means that the transferees will have a more favorable career pattern than those women officers now in the MSC.

The proposed Navy amendment permits reappointment of the women officers now in the MSC and their subsequent promotion under laws applicable to male officers. The running mate of a woman officer so reappointed will be an eligible male Line officer of the Navy.

All women officers appointed in the MSC of the Naval Reserve before the effective date of the proposed law, will be assigned running mates in the same manner as provided for male officers appointed in the MSC of the Naval Reserve.

Capt. Willard C. Calkins, USN, Chief of the Navy Medical Service Corps, said removal of the two per cent limitation on captains in the MSC will not accelerate the promotion of any officer, but it will provide future promotion opportunities for officers whose promotion would otherwise face a roadblock by the time they reach a promotion zone.

The Kilday Subcommittee has completed open hearings on the proposal and is expected to report to the full Committee next week. THE JOURNAL will tell details of this action in the 23 Feb. issue.

Marine Corps Board

Will Select Sergeants

A Selection Board, headed by Col. Richard P. Ross, USMC, has convened at Marine Corps Headquarters to consider eligible technical and staff sergeants of the Organized and Volunteer Reserve for promotion.

The board is authorized to select 90 technical sergeants for promotion to master sergeant and 288 staff sergeants to technical sergeant.

At the same time Headquarters announced that 5,500 enlisted reservists in the grades of sergeant and below will be promoted during fiscal year '57. This figure includes 1,500 promotions to staff sergeant, 2,000 to sergeant and 2,000 to corporal.

Reservists now on active duty with the regular establishment are not eligible for these promotions.

The Group's bridge and canasta players will meet for their monthly luncheon on Wednesday, 20 Feb., at Patton Hall, Ft. Myer, Va., when hostesses will be Mrs. Robert G. Lawrence and Mrs. Edward Cribbs.

Young Kingsbury to USMA—

William C. Kingsbury, Jr., son of Brig. Gen. and Mrs. William C. Kingsbury, has received a principal appointment to the U. S. Military Academy from Senator William F. Knowland of California.

Kingsbury is now an airman third class stationed at Hill AFB, Utah. He will undergo the physical examination before his entrance in July.

He was graduated from the New Mexico Military Institute in 1954. He attended the University of Colorado one year, majoring in political science. He also attended Sullivan School in Washington, D. C., one year. He enlisted in the Air Force in October 1956 and underwent eleven weeks of basic training at Lackland AFB. Upon completion of basic, Airman Kingsbury was named the outstanding member of his training flight. He had served as a squad leader and later flight commander of his unit.

General Kingsbury, his father, is now in command of a Strategic Air Command bombardment wing at Mountain Home AFB, Idaho.

$10,000 AVAILABLE FOR WIDOWS-ORPHANS

A search for widows and orphans of deceased regular Army personnel from the state of Illinois or former members of the 1st Infantry Division who need financial assistance is being instituted by the Army Relief Society.

Trustees of the Robert R. McCormick Trust have made $10,000 available for assistance to those two groups. No information on individuals in the two categories needing assistance is presently available, but the Society feels there are deserving persons who could put the grants to good use.

Anyone having knowledge of widows or orphans falling into one of the two categories who need assistance should notify the Army Relief Society in Washington, D. C., or the Army Emergency Relief office at Fort Riley.

The $10,000 grant is a portion of the estate of the late Colonel McCormick who also left his farm home near Chicago, Ill., to be converted to a 1st Infantry Division Museum.

Jango Hawaiian Luncheon Honors Service Club President

Invitations have gone out to Mrs. Charles S. Thomas, wife of the Secretary of the Navy, and Mrs. Herman Feldman, wife of the former Quartermaster General of the Army, now Secretary-Editor of The Quartermaster Association and the Quartermaster Review, to be the honor guests at the 19 Feb. Senior Jango luncheon. Mrs. Feldman is President of the Soldiers, Sailors, Marines and Airmen's Club. The affair will be held at the Ft. McNair Officers' Club and members and guests will gather at 12:15 p.m. In contrast to Washington's recent bad weather, an enticing program has been arranged, featuring the Hawaiian theme in dances, music and table decorations. Lt. Col. and Mrs. Kaipo F. Kauka will present Hawaiian vocal and instrumental numbers, and participating in the dances of the Islands, will be Mesdames S. S. Wade, M. Jenkins, J. R. Bass, R. W. Bradley, W. S. Wooten, F. A. Ramsey and D. Richardson.

Reservations and cancellations must be made for the affair by noon of Monday, 18 Feb., by calling the Jango office, NA 8-5809.

QM Women's Club to Have Spring Preview—

The Quartermaster Women's Club of Washington will meet at 12:30 p.m. on Thursday, 28 Feb., for a "Preview of Spring" luncheon, at the Ft. McNair Officers' Club. Encompassing more than fashions, many Springtime aspects will be dramatized in the table decorations, the inspiration of Mrs. Pasquale Maiorano, assisted by Mesdames J. W. McAlhany, I. A. Johnson and H. W. Veitch.

Special guests at the affair will be the wives of the Technical Service Chiefs and the Deputy Chief of Staff for Logistics, accompanied by the president of each club. Mrs. Kester L. Hastings, wife of the Quartermaster General, and Mrs. Shelby L. Gillette, president of the Quartermaster Women's Club, will head the receiving line, introducing Judge Cockrill and the special guests. The latter group will include Mesdames E. L. Cummings and J. A. Ulrich, Ordnance Corps; E. C. Itschner and E. B. Butler, Corps of Engineers; W. Preston Corderman and W. P. Pence, Signal Corps; W. M. Creasy and B. R. Bierer, Chemical Corps; Paul F. Yount and A. C. Fillbrandt, Transportation Corps; S. B. Hays and E. W.

BENNING VIRTUOSO

Tommy Salisbury, 11-year-old son of Col. and Mrs. Lloyd R. Salisbury, USA, presented a piano recital for the members of the Ft. Benning Women's Club at their 6 Feb. luncheon meeting. The youthful virtuoso's program included such numbers as Chopin's Prelude, Op. 28, No. 17; Nocturne in F Sharp Major, Op. 15, No. 2; Polonaise in C Sharp Major, Op. 26, No. 1, and Mendelssohn's Rondo Capriccioso in E, Op. 14. Tommy started playing the piano at the age of four, giving his first recital at the age of eight.

Notes from Posts, Stations, and Bases

Busy Family Aid Program At AF Center

■ EGLIN AFB, FLA.—Under the guidance of Maj. Gen. Edward P. Mechling, USAF, commander of the Air Force Armament Center, the Dependents' Assistance Program is now in its third year here.

Besides an Advisory Council, of which General Mechling is President, there are three active Committees: Officers' Wives, Civilian Wives, and Enlisted Men's Wives. Mrs. Mechling, who has spurred the program from the beginning, along with Mrs. Eugene Romig, acts in an advisory capacity for the three committees. Mrs. Carl Willey, an active worker for over two years, is assistant advisor.

Officers' Wives who are Volunteer Committee Chairmen are: Mrs. W. W. Holmes, Mrs. Joseph Heatherly, Mrs. W. W. Sloan, Mrs. John Caldwell, Mrs. Arthur Stevens, Mrs. Dougall M. Davis, Mrs. W. D. Yeaman, Mrs. Stanley Polezoes, Mrs. Robert Grimes, Mrs. Marvin Kay, Mrs. Stanley Piecha, and Mrs. Jack Sun.

The following are members of the Civilian Volunteer Group: Mrs. Frank Roe, Mrs. Kenneth Woolsey, Mrs. Henry Maulshagen, Mrs. Hugh Cahalan, Mrs. Herbert Peterson, Mrs. Alex Ginzburg, Mrs. Joseph Eken, Mrs. John Black, Mrs. Henry Barten, Mrs. Eugene Poschel, and Mrs. Herbert Tatum.

Enlisted Men's Wives Committee are: Mrs.

Nelson Gamble, Mrs. Anthony Casper, Mrs. Donald Smith, Mrs. H. C. Tuller, Mrs. W. F. Jackson, Mrs. Hyman Cain, Mrs. Riley G. McDaniel, Mrs. James Thompson, Mrs. Stanley, Mr. Taydus, Mrs. W. L. Vice, and Mrs. Robert Mays.

Each of the above Committee Groups has a Coordinator who works with the Advisory Council. Each Committee has an Emergency Chairman, TDY Chairman, Welcome Chairman, Publicity Chairman, and the necessary assistants to carry on the work.

Specific activities of these Committee Chairmen consist of such things as: Calling on each Armament Center Newcomer and explaining the services of the Dependents' Assistance Program, giving information on Base and Area services and activities, taking newcomers to coffees and luncheons. Particularly helpful are the Emergency Committees and TDY Committees which will help in any type of emergency whether it is for a minor accident or illness or for a death in the family. They will buy groceries, baby sit, and make hospital calls when necessary. They will provide household articles while families are awaiting arrival of household goods. Everything from dishes to beds is available for temporary use. A well stocked supply room is in charge of M/Sgt. Hyman Cain.

Proceeds from bake sales have provided money for the supplies and emergency needs.

and Maj. Mary Wilborne, Capt. Alice Swanson, Lt. Norma Schlessman and Lt. Willie Sanders. Pouring of tea: Capt. Helen Roslonowski, chairman, and Capt. Mary McLeod, Capt. Yvonne Utt, Capt. Mary Massoni, Capt. Patricia Scott, Lt. Normande Albert, Lt. Cecilia Judge, Lt. Ronnie Jue.

Hostesses were Major Barber, Maj. Olive Bachus, Capt. Opal Coffey, Capt. Lorena Goodell, Capt. Virginia Ehrler and Capt. Olga Kugler.

Offer Easter Shopping For Overseas Families

The Armed Services Hospitality Committee of the Recreation Services, Inc., announces that they are ready to do Easter Shopping for Service people overseas.

Mrs. William M. Galvin, Executive Secretary of the Committee states:

"We can send a corsage to your best girl, roses to your wife or an Easter lily to your Mother. We can send Easter rabbits or Easter finery to your children—anything you want to send them. We can do this now as we have for years through our non-profit Overseas Shopping Service. The folks back home will be more than pleased to have you remember them."

To make use of this non-profit shopping service follow these simple instructions exactly:

Be sure to give us first of all your name, rank or rating, serial number, unit and APO or FPO and port city. Next give us the name and addresses of the persons to whom you want the presents sent. Be sure to give name and street and city.

Name your first choice of gift in each case, (red roses—1 dozen, carnation corsage or 2 lbs. Whitman's Chocolates). In every order give the first name, relationship to you, age (if child), sex, size of the person to whom you are sending the gift (if clothing is ordered). Be clear about delivery address, and of course, of the name.

Tell us how you want the enclosure card to read. Enclose a money order covering total amount you want us to spend plus enough for parcel post, or telegram for late delivery of flowers. We will return all balance to you together with exact accounting of every cent we spend.

Now for the speed-up part: If you want your presents delivered west of the Mississippi address your order to the United Voluntary Services, Inc.—Third and El Camino, San Mateo, Calif. Make out your money order in care of the United Voluntary Services, Inc. They handle all orders for delivery in the West.

If you want your presents delivered east of the Mississippi, make your money order to Recreation Services, Inc. (our operating agency in Washington, D. C.) and mail to the Armed Services Hospitality Committee (Recreation Services, Inc.), Room 27A Old Post Office Building—12th & Pennsylvania Avenue, N.W.—Washington 25, D. C.

We can help your family to know that you are very close to them on Easter. They will appreciate your thoughtfulness. We can also handle birthday presents, anniversaries and gifts to new babies or their mothers.

People of Service

■ VICENZA, ITALY—Gifts were presented recently to the children of deceased members of the Italian Air Force by the ladies of the Fifth Allied Tactical Air Force Wives Club here. Mrs. R. E. ## Gen. Hoge Will Become Interlake's Chairman

Ronald W. Thompson, president of Interlake Iron Corporation, announces that General William M. Hoge, USA-Ret., former Army Commander-in-Chief in Europe, has joined Interlake's executive staff in Cleveland.

Mr. Thompson said that General Hoge will be proposed as a director at the annual stockholders meeting on 25 April, with the understanding that he would then be elected Chairman of the Board. This post has been unfilled in recent years.

"We are extremely fortunate that General Hoge is available at a time when Interlake is engaged in studies and planning of an expansion program," Mr. Thompson said. "He has had broad experience on major construction projects during his Army career."

"In addition to his record of unusual leadership, he was educated in engineering and business management and while in the Corps of Engineers conducted many millions of dollars worth of business with private companies."

General Hoge was graduated from the U. S. Military Academy in 1916. In 1942, General Hoge was in charge of construction of the Alcan Highway, and was in command of the landing of American forces on Omaha Beach on D-Day.

During the winter of 1944-45 he was combat commander of the 9th Armored Division, participating in the Northern France, Ardennes and Rhineland campaigns. It was his command that captured the Remagen Bridge before it could be demolished by the retreating Germans, the only major bridge across the Rhine that was captured intact. He was commanding general of the 4th Armored Division in the Central Europe campaign.

During the Korean War General Hoge served as a lieutenant general, participating in four campaigns.

General and Mrs. Hoge live in Lexington, Missouri, but will move to Cleveland in the near future. Their two sons are Army officers.

Interlake, a leading producer of merchant pig iron, operates blast furnaces, coke ovens and electric furnaces in six midwestern cities. The company's sales volume is currently running at the rate of approximately $125 million a year.

Gen. Hoge

What's Ahead in The Services

The 9TH INFANTRY DIVISION will hold its 12th annual reunion at Hotel Statler in Boston, Mass., 4-6 July. Further information can be obtained from reunion secretary Thomas Boyle, 39 Hall Ave., Somerville, Mass.

THE SOCIETY OF THE FIRST DIVISION, composed of veterans of both wars, will hold its 39th annual reunion 23-25 Aug. at the Sheraton-Park Hotel in Washington, D. C. Further information can be obtained from the Society at 5309 Germantown Ave., Philadelphia 44, Pa.

India Picks Canberra

In a manifested preference for British aircraft over Russian planes, the Indian Air Force recently ordered 68 Canberras from English Electric. The Canberras were selected instead of Soviet Ilyushin aircraft.

Although designed and developed by English Electric, three other companies in Britain build the Canberra. It is also constructed under license for the Royal Australian Air Force in Melbourne and for the U. S. Air Force by the Glenn L. Martin Co., in Baltimore, where it is known as the B-57.

They Leave Service

MAJ. ANTHONY J. VANNELLA, USAF-Ret., who retired 31 Jan., had spent 22 years in the service. His last assignment was with the Tactical Air Command as Director of Telecommunications systems at Langley AFB, Va.

COL. H. H. JORDAN, USA-Ret., Senior Army Adviser for the New York National Guard, retired from active service 31 Jan. Colonel Jordan's association with the NYNG dates back to 1953.

LT. COL. WILLIAM H. HARRELL, USAF-Ret., Chief of Materiel Inspection Division, Tactical Air Command, Langley, AFB, Va., retired from active duty 31 Jan. after 27 years of service. Colonel Harrell enlisted in the Army Air Corps in 1929 and was promoted through the ranks to an officer in 1942. He will live in Monticello, Fla.

Brooke Hospital Supply Chief

Lt. Col. Leon J. Carrington, USA, is the new Chief of the Supply and Services Division on the staff of Brig. Gen. Stuart G. Smith, USA, Commander of Brooke Army Hospital, Ft. Sam Houston, Tex. He replaced Col. Joseph O. Wintersteen, USA, who becomes Executive Officer of the U. S. Army Hospital at Ft. Sill, Okla.

Prior to his present assignment, Colonel Carrington was with the review section of the Department of Training Doctrines at Army Medical Service School. Colonel and Mrs. Carrington are living at 109 Andrews St., San Antonio.

Rep. Kilday Suggests Need For New Look At Officer Promotion Policies

work with an axe or cleaver and cut down the cost of military retirement."

Congressman Kilday later told The Journal that he has no immediate plans to introduce legislation which would eliminate below-the-zone promotions. It may be, he said, that further study and analysis will prompt him to ask for a full report from the Services on the number of officers they have promoted from below the zone.

Despite the fact that no immediate action is contemplated to wipe out the authorization for below-the-zone promotions, Pentagon officials may act to restrict such promotions solely on the basis of Congressman Kilday's interest in the subject.

In recent years all of the Services have given increased emphasis to the promotion of "outstanding" young officers below the promotion zones.

Secretary of the Navy Charles S. Thomas has told selection boards that he "expects" them to go "well below the zone" in order to select at least "a few" young officers who "stand head and shoulders above their contemporaries."

In fact, he has pointed out, the legislative history of the Officer Personnel Act "clearly shows the intent of Congress that in making selections to the grade of rear admiral, selection boards should afford early advancement to exceptionally outstanding officers."

Navy promotions have reflected this view. During the last seven fiscal years, the Navy has selected 212 Line officers for promotion to rear admiral. Of this number, 127 were selected from below the promotion zone. Boards have gone more than 150, 250, 350, 550 and, in one case, 903 names below the zone for the "anchor man."

Here is a recapitulation of the Navy selections to flag rank for fiscal years 1951 through 1957:

	1957	1956	1955	1954	1953	1952	1951	Total
Number In Zone ...	62	248	145	203	113	113	135	1,019
Selected From Zone	7	25	8	8	6	7	4	65
Selected Above Zone	6	0	2	5	1	4	2	20
Selected Below Zone	20	14	17	16	23	25	12	127

Although there is no restriction on the number of rear admirals who may be selected from below the Line zone of promotion, the percentage of Navy Line officers selected from below the zone for promotion to all other grades is limited to five percent of the total number authorized to be selected.

Prior to fiscal 1955 this authority was seldom used. In FY '55, however, Navy boards dipped below the zone to select 11 Line officers (or about four percent of the total) for promotion to captain. In FY '56, 15 new captains (or about the maximum number allowed) were selected from below the zone.

In the lower Navy Line ranks, the authority to select up to five percent from below the zone has been rarely, if ever, exercised. In FY '55, however, the Navy extended the promotion zone for promotion to Line commander to include approximately 2,000 officers (including all of those who normally would have fallen within the eligibility zone). From this group 1,648 were selected for promotion.

The Marine Corps, acting on Secretary Thomas's philosophy, has named a small percentage of Marine officers for promotion to brigadier general and colonel from below the promotion zone. However, the authority has been used sparingly. Last year, two colonels and two lieutenant colonels were selected from below the zone for promotion to the next higher grade.

THE PRESENT AIR FORCE SYSTEM for temporary promotions provides authority for hundreds of out-of-line promotions each year.

This is made possible by use of the "Exceptionally Well Qualified" approach. Air Force promotion quotas permit specified percentage promotions of EWQ officers, as follows:

To Captain—80 per cent "Fully Qualified" and 20 per cent "EWQ."

To Major—60 per cent "FQ" and 40 per cent "EWQ."

To Lt. Col.—40 per cent "FQ" and 60 per cent "EWQ."

To Colonel—All promotions to colonel are on an "EWQ" basis.

Air Force personnel experts explain that this system provides adequate recognition for the seniority factor, but at the same time gives opportunity for early advancement to the so-called "golden nugget," the outstanding officer who, it is felt, deserves to be advanced at an accelerated pace.

Air Force promotion prospects are such, however, that it now is forecast that temporary promotions will be largely out of the picture by 1960. At that time, virtually all officer promotions are expected to be on a permanent basis, with seniority counting exclusively, except in use of the "best qualified" approach for advancements to colonel.

The current system is marked by relatively large zones of eligibility from which both the "FQ" and "EWQ" selections are made.

Presumably, with the anticipated reliance on permanent promotions, zones will be reduced to prevent excessive pass-overs.

However, it is to be noted that the Corridor Plan calls for action by the Service Secretaries to make selection action more rigorous. This approach, endorsed by Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson, undoubtedly will mean a higher rate of selection-out.

ARMY OFFICIALS INDICATED that the current program which provides for up to 10 per cent "out-of-line" advancements to captain, major and lieutenant colonel and 15 per cent to colonel will be continued in the next fiscal year.

They say that this program has worked out very well in composing the issue between recognition of seniority and advancement of outstanding officers.

At the present time, there are some 60 "truly outstanding" lieutenant colonels on the selected list for promotion to temporary colonel.

The junior officer in this group has date of rank in 1951. The basic zone for promotion to colonel, however, was 31 December 1945.

Army authorities report that the relative number of temporary promotions in comparison to permanent advancements will be declining. They say, however, that it is still too early to forecast any virtual shutdown of temporary promotions around 1960, as is being foretold in the Air Force.

The Army's system in making temporary promotions is to centralize all action at the Pentagon. This means that one board looks at all records, including those in the basic and "truly outstanding" zones.

Gen. McNarney Seeks Civic Education

The Jet Age Conference heard General Joseph T. McNarney, USAF-Ret., declare that "community education can overcome perhaps 90 per cent of any opposition to jet aircraft operations."

General McNarney, President of the Convair Division of General Dynamics, spoke at a "Community Relations" panel and recounted how community cooperation has played a vital role in connection with the introduction of supersonic Convair F-102A all-weather interceptors into the Continental Air Defense Command.

The first F-102A squadron was activated at George AFB, Calif., in September. Six other bases now are handling the speedy fighter.

General McNarney said that perhaps the most important of many carefully-timed activities in the Convair-CONAD program is an orientation tour, conducted for as many as 40 leaders of a community before the airbase in that town has begun to receive F-102A equipment.

The community leaders are flown to CONAD headquarters at Colorado Springs, Colo., where they are thoroughly briefed on this command's important national defense mission. Later they see the F-102A in production at Convair's plant in San Diego, Calif.

"Let me emphasize we do not claim this program to be a panacea for all the CONAD or Air Force community relations problems," General McNarney said. "Perhaps ninety per cent of any opposition that may develop in any community can be overcome with good community education. But there will always be a few who won't be convinced."

"While the Air Force has had to face up to this jet noise problem first, I think you can all readily understand that as soon as our major airlines go to jet transports, both the airlines and the companies that make these aircraft will have a very direct stake in community acceptance of jet operations."

The Convair president noted that many of the "genuine problems of the Jet Age will require remedial legislation, such as creation of buffer zones around military bases to curb heedless community development right up to an airstrip. Military bases that share facilities with commercial airline operators on municipal airports also create ticklish and special difficulties that may be resolved only by wise municipal planning and far-seeing controls."

In a closing appeal for greater community tolerance of the increasing noise annoyance that accompanies the switch to increasingly powerful and noisy jet equipment, General McNarney declared: "These Air Force officers and crewmen are devoted men... men of intelligence, skill and undoubted courage. The better the community comes to understand these men—comes to know them by their first names, even, and gains appreciation for the hazardous nature of the missions these young men fly with such unquestioning loyalty, the better the community and this country can be defended against surprise attack."

(Next week's issue will report further on the AFA's Jet Age Conference.)

AFA's Jet Age Conference Draws Hundreds To D.C. Sessions; Salute AF Birthday

More than 1,500 leaders of industry, government, education and the Services met at the Sheraton-Park Hotel, Washington, D. C., for the second annual National Jet Age Conference of the Air Force Association on 14-15 Feb.

General Nathan F. Twining, USAF Chief of Staff, was the guest of honor at a reception, saluting the Golden Anniversary of the Air Force.

A jet age luncheon on Friday was featured with an address by Secretary of the Air Force Donald A. Quarles.

The two-day conference was featured by three symposiums. The first, on the relationship of jet-powered aviation to civic and commercial planning, included presentations by General Thomas D. White, USAF Vice Chief of Staff; Dr. Leslie A. Bryan, director of the Institute of Aviation at Illinois University; James T. Pyle, Civil Aeronautics Administrator; Milton W. Arnold, vice president of Air Transport Association; and General Joseph T. McNarney, (USAF-Ret.), president of Convair Division of General Dynamics Corporation.

The panel for this symposium, which questioned the various speakers, included Mayor William B. Hartsfield of Atlanta, chairman of the American Municipal Association's special committee on airports; Arthur E. Abney of Illinois, president of the National Association of State Aviation Officials; and Foster V. Jones of Louisville, president of the Airport Operators Council.

Moderator for the symposium was Peter J. Schenk of Santa Barbara, national director of the Air Force Association and manager of projects for the General Electric Company's technical military planning operation.

The second symposium concerned the nation's needs for more scientists and engineers.

This symposium featured presentations by Dr. Detlev W. Bronk, president of the National Academy of Sciences and member of the President's Committee for the Development of Scientists and Engineers; Lt. Gen. Clarence S. Irvine, USAF, Deputy Chief of Staff for Materiel; General Orval R. Cook, USAF-Ret, President of Aircraft Industries Association; and Dr. Edward Teller, internationally-renowned physicist and director of the radiation laboratory at the University of California.

The panel for this symposium included Dr. H. Guyford Stever, associate dean of engineering at Massachusetts Institute of Technology; Dr. Evan Evans, executive secretary of the National Aviation Education Council; and Chalmers E. Jones, manager of the Systems Division of Daystrom, Inc.

Moderator for the symposium was Theodore F. Walkowicz of New York; national AFA director and technical advisor on the staff of Laurence S. Rockefeller.

The concluding symposium covered the subject of information policies.

Presentations were made by Philip K. Allen, Deputy Assistant Secretary of Defense for Public Affairs; Hon. John Moss, U. S. Congressman from California and chairman of the House Subcommittee on Government Information; Dr. Louis Ridenour, director of research, missiles systems division of Lockheed Aircraft Corp.; and General John E. Hull, USAF-Ret., president of the Manufacturing Chemists Association and member of the Department of Defense committee on classified information.

The panel for this symposium was composed of Jerry Greene, Washington bureau of the New York Daily News; Theodore F. Koop, director of news and public affairs in Washington for the Columbia Broadcasting System; and Ken Ellington, vice president of Republic Aviation Corporation.

Moderator for the final symposium was Stephen F. Leo of Washington, national AFA director and first director of information for the U. S. Air Force.

Jet Roar Freedom's Sound, Gen. Arnold Tells Meeting

"The sound of a military jet engine is in truth the sound of freedom and the sound of safety," Vice President Milton W. Arnold of the Air Transport Association declared in an address to the Jet Age Conference on 14 Feb.

In his speech, entitled "General Rudenko and General White,"—General Thomas D. White is Vice Chief of Staff of the Air Force and General Rudenko is his counterpart in the Russian Air Force—General Arnold, USAF-Ret, noted that the Russian Air Force's high command is not concerned about the noise they make, but that the American Air Force is handicapped by civilian complaints.

"I doubt," he said, "that General White or anybody else would oppose the right to complain about a noise. That right of complaint—the right of dissent if you will—is one of the things that General White is charged with defending."

General Arnold called upon members of the aviation industry to correct this ironic situation by combatting the notion that military aviation is by policy careless of public comfort. Many instances could be cited in which military air units have reorganized their pattern of air operations in order to cause minimum discomfort to the public, he noted.

Obituaries

Col. Thomas A. Roberts, USA-Ret

Burial services were held at the National Cemetery, Ft. Sam Houston, Tex., this week for Col. Thomas A. Roberts, USA-Ret, (USMA '97), who died at Brooke Army Hospital, Ft. Sam Houston, on 11 Feb., at the age of 85.

Colonel Roberts, who was born at Springfield, Ill., served as a Cavalry officer for 14 years with the 7th Cavalry, and was wounded at the battle of San Juan Hill in the Spanish-American War. During WWI, Colonel Roberts was a member of Gen. John J. Pershing's staff, before taking command of the 375th Infantry (all Negro) Division, with which he saw distinguished service. A graduate of the General Line School at Ft. Leavenworth, Kans., and of the Army War College, where he was later an instructor, Colonel Roberts served from 1929 to 1931 as Gen. Douglas MacArthur's Chief of Staff in the Philippines. Retired from active duty in 1936, he had made his home in San Antonio, Tex., where he became known as one of the senior bowlers of the State. Colonel Roberts was a Mason and a member of the Military Order of the Carabao.

His wife, the former Jessie Reed, died in 1937, and a son, Col. T. A. Roberts, Jr., USA, a Field Artillery officer with the Third Army under Gen. George S. Patton, Jr., was killed in WWII in the battle of St. Lo.

He is survived by one daughter, Mrs. W. D. McNair of 138 Perry Court, San Antonio; one son, Capt. Reed T. Roberts, USN-Ret., of 125 Grafton St., Chevy Chase, Md.; and six grandchildren.

Col. Norman J. McMahon, USA-Ret.

Burial services were held recently, at the Golden Gate National Cemetery, San Bruno, Calif., for Col. Norman J. McMahon, USA-Ret., who died at his home at Carmel, Calif., at the age of 62.

A native of Connecticut, Colonel McMahon entered the Army in August 1917. He was a veteran of both World Wars and had seen distinguished service in northern France, Central Europe and in the Ardennes-Alsace campaigns. Retired from active duty in June 1949, Colonel and Mrs. McMahon had made their home at Carmel, where he was a member of the Carmel Art Association.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Mamie T. McMahon, Box 3826, Carmel; one son, Mr. Norman J. McMahon of Long Beach, Calif.; one daughter, Mrs. Warren Wolverton of Lawton, Okla.; two grandchildren; his mother, Mrs. Mary McMahon of New Haven, Conn., and one brother, VADM. Frederick McMahon of New York City.

Pallbearers included Maj. Gens. Walter E. Lauer, USA-Ret, Ernest J. Dawley, USA-Ret, Brig. Gen. George D. Wahl, USA-Ret, Col. Daniel B. Leininger, USA-Ret, Charles B. Hazeltine, USA-Ret., Paul C. Boylan, USA-Ret, Milo H. Matteson, USA-Ret, and C. F. Sawyer.

Friends wishing to make contributions to the memory of Colonel McMahon were requested to do so in the form of donations to the American Cancer Research Society, Box 1028, Monterey, Calif., or to the Monterey County Heart Association, Box 1329, Monterey.

Staffs of 5 RA, 9 NG, and 7 Res. Units Prepare For CPX At Ft. Gordon 1-3 March

More than 1800 Reserve, National Guard and active Army commanders and their staffs, from the seven Southeastern States, will participate in Lucky Bravo, a command-post map Exercise to be held at Ft. Gordon, Ga., March 1 through 3.

The exercise will feature an air movement of a two corps army, with its supporting troops, deep behind enemy lines. Participating personnel will then face the logistical problem of supplying the air-head for a 25 day period.

The latest airborne doctrines and techniques, along with atomic and electronic warfare principles will be employed on the problem. Chemical and biological warfare doctrines will be used.

Reserve and National Guard commanders and staffs will have the opportunity to observe the Army's newest tactical organizational concept, when the 101st Airborne Division staff (of Ft. Campbell, Ky.) brings its "pentomic" organizational concept into the maneuver play.

Two National Guard Division Staffs—the 30th Armored from Nashville, Tenn.; and the 48th Armored from Macon, Ga.—will play the role of the "Aggressor" enemy. In previous exercises the "Aggressor" forces were represented by the exercise controllers.

Lt. Gen. Thomas F. Hickey, USA, Third Army Commanding General, says that the logistical support of an air-head, demanded of all Lucky Bravo participants, is in accord with Department of the Army policy to school all commanders and staffs in the latest military techniques. "Such Exercises," he said, "contribute immensely to the commander-staff training of the Reserves, National Guard and Active Army."

Third Army officials emphasize that Lucky Bravo is a training exercise, and not based on any existing war plans.

Supervisory control of Lucky Bravo will be maintained by the Exercise Director's Staff and the Exercise Controllers. Participating commanders and staffs will have a free hand in meeting and dealing with combat problems posed during the maneuver play.

Altogether 21 unit headquarters staffs and commanders will move to Ft. Gordon for the Exercise period:

The five active Army units are: Third Army, Headquarters, Ft. McPherson, Ga.; XVIII Airborne Corps and 82d Airborne Division, Ft. Bragg, N. C.; 101st Airborne Division, Ft. Campbell, Ky., and 3d Infantry Division, Ft. Benning, Georgia.

The nine National Guard units are: 30th Armored Division, Nashville, Tenn.; 30th Infantry Division, Raleigh, N. C.; 31st Infantry Division, Greenville, Miss.; 51st Infantry Division, Columbia, S. C.; TV Corps Artillery, Charlotte, N. C.; 48th Armored Division, Macon, Ga.; 108th AAA Brigade, Winder, Ga.; 196th FA Group, Kinston, N. C.; 215th FA Group, Columbus, Miss.

The seven Reserve units are: 81st Infantry Division, 425th FA Group, and 310th Military Government Group, all of Atlanta, Ga.; the 412th Engineer Brigade, Vicksburg, Miss.; 437th FA Group, Florence, S. C.; 506th FA Group, Gainesville, Fla.; 405th FA Group, Meridian, Miss.

Mrs. Nelly Dent Sharp Bennet

Graveside services were held on 7 Feb., at Arlington National Cemetery, Washington, D. C., for Mrs. Nelly Dent Sharp Bennet, widow of Brig. Gen. John B. Bennet, USA, who died at San Antonio, Tex., on 1 Feb., at the age of 89.

The daughter of a member of Gen. Ulysses S. Grant's staff, Maj. (MC, USA) and Mrs. Alexander Sharp, Mrs. Bennet spent a lifetime active in Army circles at many posts in the United States and the Philippines. Taking up painting at the age of 56, she achieved recognition as an artist.

Of her three sons, John B. Bennet, Hiram Ransall Bennet and Col. Alexander Sharp Bennet, USA-Ret, only Colonel Bennet survives, and lives in San Antonio. She is also survived by her sister, Mrs. Dennis E. Nolan of New York City, widow of General Nolan, USA; nine grandchildren; and nine great-grandchildren.

CHAPLAINS OF THE YEAR

Three service chaplains were selected "Chaplain of the Year" and received the annual Four Chaplain Award for consecrated service and idealism to interfaith relationship during the past year.

The citations, accompanied by a cash award of $500 each, were presented by the Alexander D. Goode Lodge of B'nai B'rith, 2 Feb., at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel in New York.

Recipients were Chaplains Col. Charles P. Mulumphy, First Army Chaplain; Capt. Harris W. Howe, CHC, USN, District Chaplain, Eleventh Naval District, San Diego, Calif., and Capt. Kalman Levitan, USAF, of Headquarters, Atlantic Division, MATS, McGuire AFB, N. J.

522d Inf. Bn. CO

Maj. Ralph C. Johnson has been named battalion commander of the 522d Infantry Battalion, Ft. Sill, Okla., succeeding Lt. Col. R. W. Carpenter, Jr., who is attending the Command and General Staff College, Ft. Leavenworth, Kans. Major Johnson was formerly battalion operations and training officer.

Air Force Sets Up Weather Station At Army's Davison Air Field, Ft. Belvoir

A weather station, established to support flying activities, has started operations at Davison U. S. Army Air Field, Ft. Belvoir, Va., according to Lt. Col. C. M. Neufeld, USA, DUSAAF commander.

The station, Detachment 18 from the 25th Weather Squadron at Donaldson AFB, S. C., is commanded by Maj. Benton R. Venable, USAF. The assistant detachment commander is 1st Lt. Kenneth A. Lee.

Unit personnel include two officers and six enlisted men. The EM are A/2C Charles O. Bailey, A/2C William H. Cartwright, A/2C George N. Katz, A/2C John N. Lupton and A/3C Larry L. Jackson, all weather observers.

"The weather station is assigned here to support flying functions of Davison U. S. Army Airfield," Major Venable stated. "Our additional responsibility will be to provide official weather information for the U. S. Army Engineer Center and Ft. Belvoir."

Two teletypes at the station receive hourly weather data from most major air terminals east of the Mississippi River and all military weather stations in the United States, Major Venable reported.

A facsimile machine sends weather charts to the unit every 22 minutes. The charts furnish information concerning the atmosphere from ground surface up to 40,000 feet. In addition, the station is equipped with instruments that register altimeter settings, temperatures, humidity, wind direction and speed.

Team Demonstrates Army Aerial Deliveries

The Fifth Army Quartermaster Mobile Demonstration Team opened their 5000 mile tour of the Fifth U. S. Army Area with a television appearance on the "Bob and Kay" show, WNBQ-TV (NBC) in Chicago.

Capt. Louis Peterka, USA, team leader, is from the Quartermaster Research and Development Command, Ft. Lee, Va. M/Sgt Steve Emody was assigned to the team from the 2d Training Regiment, Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo.

The team will demonstrate the latest equipment and techniques of aerial delivery at Army Reserve Training Centers in 28 cities in the Midwest. Their two-month itinerary began in the Illinois Military District, which has booked all of the 5th Army Mobile Demonstration Team on Television.

Gen. Bolte Presents Charter

Baltimore's Loyola College Company of the Association of the U. S. Army last week received its charter from General Charles Bolte, USA-Ret., former Vice Chief of Staff during a ceremony at Ft. Meade, Md.

SAC Reading Trend Goes to Non-Fiction

A trend toward non-fiction and serious reading matter has been established in base libraries of the Strategic Air Command.

According to SAC librarian, Miss Georgia Cavin, more than 2½ million pieces of literature were circulated through SAC base libraries during 1956. This included cloth-bound books, paper-backed books and periodicals.

Although some bases, Ramey AFB, P. R., for instance, circulated a preponderance of fictional literature, Miss Cavin noted a definite trend in the overall picture toward "heavier" reading matter. Travis AFB, Calif., for example, checked out 18,853 non-fiction books during the year as opposed to 11,998 fiction books.

Gen. Mudgett Departs Ord To Alaskan Command

Colors of units stationed at Ft. Ord, Calif., were massed before an honor guard 15 Feb., when Maj. Gen. Gilman C. Mudgett, USA, received the official goodbye from his command here.

Rendering honors to the General was a 108-man Honor Guard representing all units of the 5th Infantry Division and Fort Ord. Host during the formal ceremony was Brig. Gen. John D. F. Phillips, USA, 5th Division Artillery Commander. Lt. Col. Eugene N. Axtell, USA, Deputy Chief of Staff, Operations, will be the commander of troops.

General Mudgett will become U. S. Army Commander in Alaska and CG of the 2d Infantry Division at Ft. Richardson.

Changes Are Ahead In USNR Promotion Policies

lated cases could a Reserve officer on inactive duty find it possible to demonstrate such outstanding performance as to merit accelerated promotion. Further, said the Navy, "such exceptional cases do not warrant seeking a change which might prove undesirable in other ways."

The Board also asked that legislation be sought to eliminate "dual selection" criteria. In other words, the Navy was asked to make the same criteria apply to both Regular and Reserve officers. In making this suggestion, the Board explained that under the Officer Personnel Act, Reserves on extended active duty are considered for selection under the "inappropriate criterion" of "qualified for continued active duty." This procedure, Admiral Johnson's Board said, has required administrative interpretation and resulted in confusion of selection board members who also must consider Regular officers competing against Reserves for the same vacancies under the "best fitted" criterion.

The Navy declined to accept this reasoning, stating that "the differing criteria are considered necessary in order to protect the high performance Reserve officer who might suffer in selection because of narrower detailing in his background or interruptions in his active duty."

The third recommendation disapproved by the Navy Secretary was that which asked that legislation be sought to amend the OPA to provide that Reserve officers should comprise 50 per cent of the membership of boards which meet to pick Reserve officers for increased rank.

The Navy held that "current administrative policies satisfy the principle sought by the Board in this area." In addition, unqualified approval of the recommendation, in isolated cases, would result in unacceptable technical errors, the Navy said.

In addition, the Navy disapproved one part of a four part suggestion that vigorous action be taken to transfer to inactive status certain classes of inactive Reserve officers in an unobligated status. While the Navy went along with the suggestion that Reservists who fail to submit required reports, those who are twice passed over, and those who fail to report for physicals should be shifted to the inactive status list, it did not agree that the same action should be taken against officers overage in grade. The Navy explained that many overage in grade officers are enthusiastically participating in Reserve affairs who show "valuable mobilization potential."

The Navy gave its unqualified approval to 22 of the Johnson Board recommendations and approved six with minor qualifications. Legislation is being sought which will bring the remaining six proposals into line with the desires of the Board.

The six legislative changes being sought are:

● Amend the OPA to require that Reserve officers eligible for advancement to the ranks of lieutenant commander, commander and captain be considered by separate boards from those considering Regulars.

● Amend OPA to allow the Navy Secretary to furnish Regular and Reserve boards the maximum number to be advanced to captain, commander and lieutenant commander. In other words, each board would be given numbers based on the percentage of eligible Regular and Reserve officers.

● Amend OPA to provide that percentage limitations equal to those now applicable to the selection of Regulars from below the zone be applied to Reserves.

● Amend OPA to provide that a nurse shall sit on boards convened to select nurses.

● Permit per diem allowances to be paid to inactive duty Reserve officers under the same conditions as apply to other officers ordered to serve on selection boards.

● Permit the Navy Secretary to establish a fixed numerical base of Reserve Line officers to which percentile limitations in the ranks of Reserve officers may be applied.

A complete list of the 37 Johnson Board recommendations and the reasoning behind them appeared in the 17 Nov. 1956 edition of THE JOURNAL.

Department Heads

New directors have been announced for three departments of the Ft. Benning, Ga., U. S. Army Infantry School.

Col. Charles F. Leonard, jr., USA, director of the Weapons Department since October 1954, will succeed Col. Blair A. Ford, USA, as Director of Instruction. Colonel Ford will leave for Germany.

New director of the Weapons Department will be Col. William E. Harrison, USA, Deputy Director since July, 1955.

Col. Dured E. Townsend, USA, will replace Col. Thomas E. Beck, USA, as Deputy Assistant Commandant for Combat Developments. Colonel Townsend has served as deputy to Colonel Beck, who leaves for Alaska.

Lloyd is at the controls.

All Services Try Plans To Standardize Props

A detailed plan to standardize aircraft propellers and propeller parts in the three Armed Services was agreed upon tentatively at Robins AFB, Ga., recently at a Department of Defense Standardization Conference attended by representatives from the Army, Navy, Air Force, and Office of the Assistant Secretary of Defense.

The projects for standardizing propellers under Federal Supply Class 1610 are under the mentorship of the Warner Robins Air Materiel Area at Robins AFB, since that headquarters has world-wide responsibility for Air Force propellers.

Roy M. Williams, chief of the WRAMA Interchangeability and Standardization Branch and chairman of the conference, said the actual implementation of the program is scheduled to begin in July 1957 and will continue over a three-year period. Thereafter standardization will be maintained in all services by set procedures. The detailed plans now go to each of the services for final coordination.

Key officials attending the conference included: George Franks and Joseph Fay of the Office of the Assistant Secretary of Defense; Delmas Elchorn, Army Transportation Corps; Lt. Comdr. H. L. H. Collins, USN, Bureau of Aeronautics, Dept. of Navy; William E. Gregory, Hq. Air Materiel Command, USAF; P. S. Carter, A. H. Lambert, G. L. Word and B. Chasman, Wright Air Development Center, Wright-Patterson AFB, O.

As a result of the standardization program the assets of all three services, relative to propellers, can be utilized to the fullest extent and substantial savings realized through the reduction of unnecessary purchases, Williams explained.

Other benefits of the program will include: more realistic procurement of propellers through consolidation of purchase requirements; easier determination of logistic requirements and improved logistic support; establishment of a basic engineering terminology and codes among the services; and reduced distribution and maintenance costs.

Also taking part in the inter-departmental conference were personnel from the Supply, Maintenance, and Procurement Directorates at WRAMA.

Kaman Wins Contract For New Navy Copter

The Navy has awarded a research and development contract to Kaman Aircraft Corp., Bloomfield, Conn., for a new utility helicopter.

The contract was let following a Navy design competition in which leading companies in the helicopter industry participated. Kaman entered both twin-rotor and single-rotor designs. The Navy chose the single-rotor design and has designated it HU2K-1. The copters will be powered by General Electric T-58 gas turbine engines.

Fairchild Engine Div. Builds Combustion Lab.

Construction of a new Supersonic Combustion Laboratory at Fairchild Engine Division, Deer Park, Long Island, will begin soon, it is announced by George F. Chapline, vice-president and general manager. The new laboratory will be utilized for experimental work in aerodynamics and thermodynamics. Completion is expected by mid-May.

"The long-range objectives of this program," continued Mr. Chapline, "involve the exploration of fields which show promise for future propulsion systems and development of skills required to maintain Fairchild's leadership in the lightweight turbojet engine field."

Overhaul Contractors Elect New Chairman

Douglass F. Johnson, president of Aircraft Engineering & Maintenance Co., Oakland, Calif., has been elected chairman of the board of governors of The Aircraft Service Association. TASA is comprised of firms performing contract maintenance and overhaul of military aircraft, engines, and accessories.

Other officers include Harold C. Stuart of Tulsa, Okla., president; Winston Castleberry, executive vice president of Southwest Airmotive Co., Dallas, vice president, and Robert M. Scott of Washington, D. C., secretary-treasurer.

Members of the board of governors, in addition to Johnson, Stuart and Castleberry, are Maxwell Balfour, Spartan Aircraft Co., Tulsa; Neal J. Coleman, Pacific Airmotive Corp., Burbank, Calif.; William J. Gorman, Southern California Aircraft Corp., Ontario, Calif.; J. Kenneth Hull, Lockheed Aircraft Service, Inc., Burbank, Calif.; Percy A. Johnson, Grand Central Aircraft Co., Glendale, Calif.; W. L. Landers, Fairchild Aircraft Div., Hagerstown, Md.; Robert McCulloch, Temco Aircraft Corp., Dallas; Henry I. McGee, Dallas Airmotive, Inc., Dallas, and L. B. Smith, L. B. Smith Aircraft Corp., Miami, Fla.

THE LOCKHEED U-2 is being used by the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics to obtain detailed information about gust-meteorological conditions at high altitude. The research program makes use of instrumentation furnished by the NACA and the Wright Air Development Center of the USAF, and logistical and technical support is provided by the Air Weather Service of the USAF. Since the program began last Spring, numerous data gathering flights have been made in the United States and elsewhere in the world. The NACA has found the U-2 (powered by a Pratt & Whitney J-57) a useful research tool, especially because of its capability to maintain flight at high altitude, as high as 55,000 feet. Subjects under study include clear air turbulence, convective clouds, and the jet stream.

CHIEF LEGAL ADVISORS of the Technical Services meet with Maj. Gen. George W. Hickman, the Judge Advocate General of the Army, in the Pentagon. They are (l to r) Col. James F. Stuart Wilson, Assistant General Counsel, Legal Office, Office, Chief of Ordnance, substituting for Mr. A. C. Lazure, General Counsel; Mr. Robert M. Lemke, General Counsel, Office of the Quartermaster General, and Col. Frederick C. Lough, JAGC, Legal Advisor, Office Chief of Chemical Officer.

Industrial College Group Visits Friendship Plant

The electronics industry group from the Industrial College of the Armed Forces at Ft. McNair, Washington, D. C., visited the Westinghouse Electronics Division plant at Friendship Airport, Md., 15 Feb. to discuss three problems of joint industry-military interest.

Panel discussions were held by Mr. N. V. Petrou, Westinghouse Air Arm Division engineering manager; Mr. R. C. McDevitt, manufacturing manager; and Mr. Harold D. Ellrod, sales manager, who was a WWII Army Corps of Engineers major.

Col. Homer L. Davis, Jr., was officer-in-charge for the Industrial College group, composed of approximately 20 officers from all Services.

The Industrial College class makes a number of visits to key manufacturing facilities throughout the Nation as part of its curriculum.

At Friendship the students were welcomed by Dr. S. W. Herwold, Manager of the Air Arm Division of Westinghouse.

Tom C. Clark has been appointed to the new position of director of military sales by the Hoffman Laboratories, Inc. Clark previously was manager of military requirements for the lab.

Developing Flight Trainer

Under a contract for more than $1 million with the Naval Training Device Center, N. Y., Sylvania Electric Products, Inc., is developing UDFT, a Universal Digital Operational Flight Trainer. The program is sponsored jointly by the Navy and the Air Force.

Ship-to-Ship Refueling

The Navy has awarded Flight Refueling, Inc., a contract for the design and manufacture of ship-to-ship refueling assemblies. After completion of the unit, the assembly will be tested and evaluated for possible adoption by the Navy.

New Flight Suit For Navy

A new integrated torso flight suit developed for the Navy's A4D Skyhawk has been accepted as standard equipment for all pilots flying the midget attack bomber. Douglas Aircraft company has announced. The lightweight suit incorporates in a single garment a life jacket, a parachute harness, seat belt, shoulder strap, and oxygen equipment, thus freeing the pilot from many of the usual encumbrances.

The A4D pilot, wearing the new suit, is held in his seat by four quick-release fittings. Should he find it necessary to eject himself in an emergency, the whole ejection seat unit flies clear of the aircraft, the seat falls away and the parachute is opened automatically by a timing device. Since each ejection unit is equipped with its own oxygen supply, the pilot may bail out safely at any altitude.

$1 Million More for Navaho

An addition of $1,082,670 to an existing contract to North American Aviation's Missile Development Division has been made by the Air Force. The extra money will be used in connection with the program for the SM-64 Navaho, the intercontinental strategic guided missile being developed for the Air Force.

MAJ. GEN. WILLIAM W. QUINN, USA (left), Fourth Infantry Division and Ft. Lewis commander, is honored with permanent hunting and fishing privileges. Lt. Col. Charles A. Schubert, USA, Ft. Lewis Rod and Gun Club president, is shown presenting the General a lifetime membership in the club. Just like everybody else, however, Gen. Quinn will still need state or county licenses even for on-post field expeditions.

Navy P.O. Action

At a briefing in the office of Capt. William M. Collins, USN, Executive Secretary of the Ad Hoc Group, headed by VADM. James L. Holloway, jr., USN, Chief of Naval Operations for Personnel and Reserve, it was explained that approximately 84 per cent of the recommendations in the four groups stemmed from a lack of detailed information on the part of enlisted men.

PUBLISHES BOOK

The entire Navy soon will be given a chance to examine the actions taken by Admiral Holloway's 15-man Group. A Chief of Naval Operations Instruction is being prepared to which will be appended a 180 to 190 page supplement listing all petty officer recommendations, along with discussions and action to be taken. The instruction, now at the printers, is expected to be in the hands of all major commands early in March. It will direct commanding officers to funnel appropriate information to their subordinates as speedily as possible. In some cases, it will not be necessary for all commands to release the entire bulk of the Group's actions, since all recommendations will not apply to all commands.

The book is broken down into two major parts: a Command Attention Section and an Administrative and Legislative Section.

Forwards to each group of recommendations explain the action to be taken by local commanders. Each recommendation is followed by from one-half to six pages of discussion explaining the reasoning behind the Group's decision.

Journal Goes Electronic

To give better and faster service to our readers throughout the world, THE JOURNAL is going electronic!

We are converting from an old conventional addressing and mailing system that takes two-and-a-half days to complete our subscribers' list, to an ultra-modern electronic system that does the entire job in a few hours. When the transition is completed we will be able to get all of our copies off to our readers more efficiently than ever before.

But—like all modernization this shift takes time. During the transition we are operating under a double work-load. Copies to some subscribers could be delayed. If yours happens to be one of these, won't you please bear with us for a few weeks until the transition is completed? Then your service will be better than ever before.

Thanks.

Promotions Planned For AF Nurses

ists to remain on active duty until age 60.

The mandatory retirement provisions of the proposed law are the same for the Air Force as for the Army. This will require the retirement of the majority between 50 and 55 years of age after 25 years of active service.

A total of 65 officers are programmed for retirement before fiscal 1963.

Permanent Promotion

Air Force Nurses and Medical Specialists are Air Force officers designated to perform medical duties. Permanent grades in the number authorized by the Officer Personnel Act of 1947 apply to them in the same way they apply to other Air Force officers.

Due to the limited requirement for senior officers in these categories, promotions to the grade of colonel and lieutenant colonel have been limited by the Secretary of the Air Force to meet AF requirements. Promotions to the grade of major have been limited to 56 per cent of new nurse eligibles and 75 per cent of new medical specialist eligibles entering the zone of consideration each year, that is, upon completion of 14 years of promotion service.

In the Nurse Corps, nine officers hold the permanent grade of lieutenant colonel and 62 the grade of major. In the Medical Specialist Corps, one officer holds the permanent grade of lieutenant colonel and five hold the permanent grade of major.

Enactment of the new proposal (HR 2460) will permit the promotion of 218 nurses and three medical specialists to the permanent grade of major next year. All eligible officers are now serving in a higher temporary grade except 96 nurses.

Promotion Service Credit

The bill also authorizes as promotion list service for persons appointed in the regular service all active commissioned service performed after age 21 and subsequent to 6 Dec. 1941 up to a total of 14 years. Present law permits credit for active service after 31 Dec. 1947 only.

The plan authorizes adjustment of the promotion service of officers presently commissioned in the regular service in accordance with the provisions of the new law.

It also authorizes not more than three years of constructive promotion credit for professional experience if appointed in the grade of first lieutenant under regulations prescribed by the Secretary. This provision would permit initial appointment in the grade of first lieutenant of persons with outstanding professional qualifications.

The measure also authorizes a formula for computing retired pay to be based upon years of promotion service. This change provides the same benefits as for male officers integrated into the regular service between 1945 and 31 Dec. 1947. At present, only active service may be used in computing retired pay.

The bill permits nurses and medical specialists to be members of promotion boards considering officers of their respective corps.

It authorizes the retention on active duty for a period of two years from the date promoted to a higher regular grade of officers who would otherwise be mandatorily retired under the provisions of the bill.

The Subcommittee has completed open hearings on the proposed legislation and is expected to report to the full Committee next week. Details of this action will be told in THE JOURNAL for 23 Feb.

USMA '36 Grad Retires

Col. Phillip S. Greene, USA, has retired after more than 20 years' service. He had been assigned to the Third U. S. Army Reserve Command Staff at Ft. McPherson, Ga.

Colonel Greene, 43, USMA '36, and Mrs. Greene plan to make their retirement home in Schenectady, N. Y.

Action At The Capitol

Introduced In The House

ACADEMY APPOINTMENTS—HR 4596, Rep. Roberts (D-Ala), permits a Representative of Congress to nominate as a candidate to West Point, Annapolis or the USAF Academy, a person domiciled at any place in the State from which the Representative is elected.

RESERVE RETIREMENT—HR 4600, Rep. Taylor (R-NY), provides more adequate retirement benefits for members of the Reserve components of the Armed Services who have served in WW I, WW II and the Korean campaign.

Introduced In The Senate

OFFICER RANK—S. 1093, Sen. Thurmond (D-SC), provides three-star rank for the Surgeons General and the Judge Advocates General.

TERMINAL-LEAVE PAY—S. 1094, Sen. Thurmond (D-SC), provides an extension of time for making application.

EDUCATIONAL BENEFITS—S. 1095, Sen. Case (R-SD), provides educational benefits for persons who perform active service in the Armed Forces after 31 Jan '55, while compulsory military service is required.

OPPOSITION IS DEVELOPING at the Capitol to the Army's plan to do away with the horse-drawn caissons used for military funerals at Arlington National Cemetery.

Representative William G. Bray (R-Ind), a member of the House Armed Services Committee, and a colonel in the Army National Guard, says the Army, in its economy move, "seems to be straining at a gnat."

He told the House: "we can have an Army without having the caissons at Arlington. We could have an Army without guard mount and taps, without bands and without retreat. We can abandon our customs of the past. Yes; we could even have an Army without a flag, but I do not think it would be much of an Army."

IN A SIMILAR VEIN, Senator J. Glenn Beall (R-Md), wrote to President Eisenhower, after he read about the caisson decision, and suggested that perhaps the Government is getting so budget-conscious that it is "beginning to stifle all our emotions." He said he feels the cost of the horse-drawn military funerals "can be more than justified when spent in honor of our warrior dead, but I realize that such sentiments cannot help balance a ledger. Perhaps, then, we might consider the practical investment in the traditions which have kept us strong, and without which we cannot survive."

Senator Beall stated, "I sincerely feel that we must guard against the day when, to use an extreme example, we might be considering the advisability of maintaining the honor guard at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier."

Both legislators said they have received many letters in opposition to the plan to eliminate the funeral horses.

ONE OF THE FASTEST ABOUT FACES in history was recorded at the Capitol this week. On Thursday, 7 February, Representative John J. Flynt, Jr. (D-Ga) told the House that a physician in his district had applied for an Army commission and had received a letter from the Pentagon stating that he had been accepted. The physician, Congressman Flynt related, immediately sold his house, disposed of his practice and prepared to put on an Army uniform. At that point, he said, the proffer of a commission was withdrawn. Congressman Flynt observed that that was no way to run an Army. Over the week-end, things happened. On Monday, 11 February, Mr. Flynt reported the new developments to the House. He said "As soon as this matter was brought to the personal attention of the Surgeon General, Maj. Gen. Silas B. Hays, this matter was thoroughly inquired into by him with the result that the earlier action of the Surgeon General's Office was promptly confirmed and the tender of an appointment in the Medical Corps of the Regular Army was reinstated." He added, "I want to personally express to Major General Hays my profound appreciation for the prompt and equitable manner in which he acted in keeping with the highest traditions of the Army and of the branch of the Army which he so ably commands."

EARLY TELETYPEWRITER

TELETYPE MODEL 28 PRINTER

50 YEARS THAT CHANGED THE PICTURE

The need for a reliable printing telegraph instrument that would provide a typed record of the message for both sender and receiver brought the company now known as the Teletype Corporation into the picture in 1907. From the halting performance of the original page printer to the smooth 100 words per minute of today's precision equipment has been a major step in communications.

But today Teletype equipment is often far more than a communication instrument. It is a basic element in production control systems... its ability to transmit and reproduce text and punched tape is harnessed to office automation... it provides a "conveyor system" for channeling complex raw data to a computing center thousands of miles away—and getting the answers back in a twinkling.

Indeed, Teletype machines have made many of the dreams of 1907 a daily part of today's business world. And the horizons widen daily as new dreams occupy our engineers and keep our laboratories humming.

If you would like a copy of our booklet, "The ABC's of Teletype Equipment," write to Teletype Corporation, Dept. AN2, 4100 Fullerton Ave., Chicago 39, Illinois.

Atomic Submarine

thority exists for 15 A-subs through the Fiscal Year 1957 shipbuilding program.

The SSN-591 will be an attack submarine of the SSN-588 class, with an Albacore-type hull and a single screw. The whale-shaped design improves maneuverability, as well as offering the advantages of increased speed and range.

The award went to the Newport News Shipbuilding and Drydock Co., Newport News, Va. RADM. Albert G. Mumma, USN, Chief, Bureau of Ships, pointed out that this will be the first time that a submarine will be completely built by the Virginia yard. Before this, the hull of the USS Seal (G-1) had been built by the yard in 1908, but it was completed by Lake Torpedo Boat Co., Bridgeport, Conn.

The Navy is seeking authority for construction of three guided missile nuclear-powered submarines and an atomic-powered attack submarine in the FY '53 program.

Here's a list of atomic submarines which have been or are being built:

SSN-571 (Nautilus); SSN-575 (Sea Wolf); SSN-578 (Skate); SSN-585 (Skipjack); SSN(N)-586 (Triton); SSN-589 (unnamed); SSN-579 (Swordfish); SSN-584 (Seadragon); SSN-583 (Sargo); SSG(N) (Halibut); SSN-588 (unnamed); SSN-590 (unnamed); SSN-592 (unnamed); and SSN-591 (unnamed).
